PROPOSALS FOR MUSIC.
The Fifth Gift Concert for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky will come off in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 30TH, 1874.
As this is the last of the series, and will be the grandest affair of the kind that has ever occurred in the world (the management have determined to have the music worthy of the occasion), and to give the musicians of the whole country an equal chance to furnish it. Bids will therefore be received until the 15th of November, for a Grand Orchestral Concert of
ONE HUNDRED INSTRUMENTS OR MORE.
Music will be required at intervals during the entire day of the drawing, and at night a Grand Orchestral Concert free to all. Sealed proposals giving the number and character of performers and the price addressed to the undersigned, will receive due attention and the contract will be awarded to the lowest and best bidder.

TO LET—WITHOUT BOARD, FOR GENTLEME

GRANT-HONORE.

Wedding of Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Dent Grant to Miss Ida Marie Honore.

THE EVENT OF THE SEASON IN CHICAGO.

A Brilliant Assemblage of Distinguished Guests.

THE MARRIAGE CEREMONY.

Toilets of the Bride and Bridesmaids and Splendors of the Trousseau.

LIST OF THE BRIDAL PRESENTS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20, 1874.

The marriage of Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Dent Grant, eldest son of Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, with Ida Marie, second daughter of H. H. Honoré, of this city, was solemnized at three o'clock this afternoon, at the residence of the bride's father, on Vincennes avenue and Forty-seventh street. No social event ever created such an excitement among the "upper ten" of this city, and though many were disappointed in not receiving invitations, it is generally conceded that Mr. Honoré has acted with praiseworthy discretion in limiting the invitations to the intimate friends of both families. Mr. Honoré, in reply to the innumerable demands that were made for cards of invitation, replied that his daughter was not marrying the President of the United States, but simply Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Dent Grant, U. S. A., and he desired the affair to culminate as quietly as possible. The prominence given to this marriage by the press throughout the United States was entirely contrary to the wishes of the family, and it was nearly impossible to obtain the slightest particle of information from any of its members.

Arrival of the Guests.

Shortly before three P.M. the carriages commenced to pass up through the southern entrance, and after depositing their cargo of silks and satins passed on through the northern gateway and took up a position on Vincennes avenue. The outside public thronged the sidewalk along the avenue and peered curiously through the railings, watching each arrival with a feverish anxiety. The guests, passing through the hall, moved up stairs to the toilet rooms, and presently returning to the first floor, promenaded through the parlors, breathing the perfume of the sweet flowers that so liberally decked the walls and mantels. The President was a little late in arriving, as he went through a fearful ordeal at the Palmer House during the morning, standing for nearly two hours and shaking about three thousand hands. Mrs. Potter Palmer, the sister of the bride, moved round among the fifty or sixty guests, charming every one with her fairy-like beauty and grace. At last there was a little buzz on the outside, and a carriage drove up, from which descended President and Mrs. Grant and ex-Secretary and Mrs. Borie. The ushers, Messrs. H. H. Honoré, Jr., W. W. Hall and Lieutenant Webster, then marshalled the bridal cortège, and they presently descended into the parlor in the following order:—

THE BRIDAL PROCESSION.

Bridesmaids and groomsmen: Mr. H. H. Honoré with the bride, and the groom with Mrs. Honoré. The procession moved slowly up the parlor, while a band of twelve pieces played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." Halting at the alcove the bride and groom faced the Rev. Isaac Everett, and stood immediately under the floral canopy. Mr. and Mrs. Honoré stood behind them, and on the left were Ulysses S. Grant, Jr., with Miss Hall, and Lieutenant Larned with Miss Buckner, while Mr. Adrian Honoré with Miss Houston and General Forsyth with Miss Dunlevy, on the right, completed the semi-circle. President and Mrs. Grant stood behind, on the left, and Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer occupied a like position on the right. The minister, Rev. Mr. Everett, was attired in a plain suit of black, and the service, as follows, was plain and simple in the extreme.

The Ceremony.

The following is the form of marriage used on this occasion, the Honorés belonging to the Church of the Disciples, of the sect known as Campbellites:—

We are about to unite in marriage Frederick Dent Grant and Ida Marie Honoré.

There being no lawful impediment to this union, the parties to it presenting themselves in the presence and with the approbation of their parents, accompanied with the best wishes of their large circle of friends; and, moreover, being moved thereto by mutual affection, this consecration of their lives to the sacred objects of marriage has a right to be regarded with the liveliest interest and with brightest hopes, as well as with earnest prayer to the Father of Light, from whom descendeth every good and perfect gift, that He will grant them, in this decisive step, that blessing that maketh rich, and to which He addeth no sorrow.

Deeply solemn and significant, in reference to marriage, are the words spoken of it when it was first ordained:—"Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife; and they shall be one flesh." The tenderest ties of filial affection yield to the drawings of that love which binds two willing hearts in a new companionship, and withdraws them from all they have most loved and trusted, to assert for themselves a new sovereignty and venture together on a new path of life. In thus resigning the most tender and sacred associations of the past, and going out from the dear home fellowship with father and mother, brother and sister, to enter on an untried path and commit the whole of life to new ends and aims, it ought to be a joy to you, my young friends, to know that you are acting in accordance with the will of your Creator. The blessedness of Paradise was not complete until marriage crowned all its joys in the union of the man whom God made in His own image, and the woman whom he formed out of man as a part of his own being, to live in his heart, to stand by his side and to share his life. The loss of Paradise can never be an utter loss, so long as this original law of human society is honored and obeyed, and man and woman shall cherish and maintain that supremacy of wedded love which God has made the very foundation of earthly happiness. In that religion which seeks the recovery of our race from sin and death marriage holds an honorable place. Ordained by our Creator, sanctioned by our Redeemer, held sacred alike in the law and in the Gospel, and proved by all human experience to be essential to the dignity of our nature, the order and security of society, and the promotion of the noblest objects of our existence, it should be alike a high solemnity and a supreme joy to you to enter, as you are now to do, into uttering the vows which are to bind you in lifelong companionship. Earth witnesses nothing more sacred than such a union of hearts and lives; Heaven listens to no vows more binding than the marriage vows in which your mutual love, trust and fidelity are to find expression.

Assured that this is well understood and appreciated by you, and that you are ready, in the light of all that God has taught of the duties of husband and wife, to assume the obligations of marriage I will only remind you, before the word is spoken that is to make you one, of a divine precept, in the remembrance and observance of which you may certainly secure the completest happiness of married life:—"Let the husband so love his wife even as himself, and the wife see that she reverence her husband."

If now, forsaking all others, you are prepared to give yourselves to each other, to live in the holy estate of marriage, according to God's law, you will join your right hands.

Do you, Frederick Dent Grant, take this woman whom you now hold by the right hand to be your wedded wife, vowing to be to her a true, loving and faithful husband so long as you both shall live?

Do you, Ida Marie Honoré, take this man whom you now hold by the right hand to be your wedded husband, vowing to be to him a true, loving and faithful wife so long as you both shall live?

Let this faith be mutually plighted by giving and receiving this ring. Pure and endless, let it symbolize the love which makes you one.

Having thus promised to be true and faithful to each other, and having sealed your vows by giving and receiving a ring,

I NOW PRONOUNCE YOU HUSBAND AND WIFE,

henceforth one in name, in interest and in all the joys and sorrows of life, until it shall please God to part you by death. What God hath joined together let not man put asunder.

May our Father in Heaven bless you and make you a blessing, and enable you so to live a life of faith in the Lord Jesus and of obedience to Him, that you may enjoy the riches of His grace here, and in the world to come life everlasting.

After the Ceremony.

Immediately after the minister had finished and offered his congratulations to Colonel and Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant the band struck up the overture to "Zampa," and Mrs. Honoré came up and kissed her daughter. The latter operation was then repeated by Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Grant and the President. The bridal party then formed a semi-circle, with the newly married couple in the centre, and the President and Mrs. Grant on the left, and all those present passed along and tendered their congratulations. A move was then made to the collation, the bride and groom leading the way.

The Collation.

After the ceremony the guests who were invited to witness this interesting event greeted the bride with warm and heartfelt congratulations. Then the way was immediately led to the small parlor back of the library, where the wedding collation was laid. The favored guests, numbering about sixty or seventy people, moved forward in regular order to the sweet, mellow tones of the band, which discoursed most appropriate music during the feast. The view of the table was dazzling in its brightness, the entire service being of silver and glass. This service, which is perfectly plain but solid, was first used at the wedding of Mr. Honoré's eldest daughter, now Mrs. Potter Palmer. Cups, saucers and plates, with the standards and many other dishes, were of silver, while this was relieved and the effect heightened by the many graceful and unique vessels in Baccarat glass. The crystal chandelier put up for this occasion, which alone cost $500, and which lighted up the room with its eleven burners, was suspended from the ceiling just over the centre of the table. The sparkle and flash of this ornament, the sheen of the silver and the shimmer of the glass, with the delicate odors and the dainty flowers were like a dream of fairy land. The tout ensemble was beautiful, having been æsthetically designed and artistically executed. Standing in line ready to remove the covers at the signal from the major domo were a score of colored waiters in full regulation dress suits of fine broadcloth, with white vests, neckties, and handsome flowers. At a signal from their chef, each man stepped forward and raised the silver cover from some elegant dish.

The menu, which was printed on the finest cream laid English paper, was in mauve ink and missal text.

IN THE CENTRE OF THE TABLE

was an exquisite ornamental stand of flowers. It stood about two feet high, and was surmounted by a large globe, or rather half-globe, of flowers, in which carnations, camellias, tuberoses, jasmine and bridal roses predominated. Vines of smilax trailed, and were festooned gracefully from beneath it, and with every motion that stirred the air waves of perfume arose from this lovely ornament and were wafted through the room. Artificial odors grew rank or scentless in presence of its overpowering, but pure and delicate odor.

At the top and bottom were the bride's and groom's cake. These were twenty-two inches in diameter, and were mounted on silver standards about two inches larger in circumference than the cakes. On this space was placed an exquisite wreath of tuberoses, heliotrope, Provence buds and tiny bridal roses. A similar wreath adorned the edge of the cakes, while a graceful bouquet ornamented the centre of each. At each side of the table was a dish of game en Bellevue, also in silver dishes; one being boned quail and the other boned prairie chicken. The beauty of these dishes consisted in the fact that they were each surmounted by a delicately cooked bird like those in the dish, but, through some mysterious necromancy of the cuisine, clad in its natural feathers and looking natural as life, but with one gentle, dexterous touch these were removed as if by magic. On each of the corners was a tall ornamented pyramid of ice cream, delicately flavored and colored. Again, in uniform position came the patties, sweetbreads, turkey, oysters, and the fillets of snipe. The cakes, ices, jellies, fruits and other delicacies finished the adorning and made a selection of edibles that would have tempted, not an anchorite but an epicure. Tea, coffee and champagne frappé were the principal fluids offered, but in every room there was some delicious drink frappé, including all the fruits, delicate wines, punches and coffee, tea and chocolate. This was a most thoughtful and desirable arrangement, as too frequently at such entertainments it is almost impossible to get even a drink of water. The more favored guests having finished their repast and done ample justice to the feast, they returned to the drawing rooms, as at half-past four the general reception commenced. The high-priced darky waiters, buttoning linen jackets over their satin vests that they might not be soiled, immediately cleared and reset the table, and in the briefest time imaginable it was restored to its pristine beauty. This room, like all the others, was

ONE GLOWING, PERFUMED MASS OF BLOOM.

Pale, saintly heliotropes, dark, ensanguined passion flowers, stainless virgin lilies, scarlet geraniums, drooping fuchsia sprays, glowing scarlet geraniums and bouvardias, purple pansies and sweet-scented English violets, roses in every style, from the baby bud that whispers its first love tone to the full-blown blossom that so plainly urges its passionate appeal it scarce needs a floral interpreter to read its language; delicate zinneas, pearly white jasmine, fragrant tuberoses, Southern crêpe-moss, oleanders, magnolias and every flower that blows, with all dainty-trailing vines, made up a charming rest for the eye and a dainty treat for the nose.

Congratulations.

After satisfying the wants of the inner man the guests moved up stairs and paid a visit to the room where the presents were displayed, and a pleasant ten minutes passed away examining the costly tokens of friendship that the bride had received. Shortly after four P. M. the bride and groom returned to their position under the floral canopy, and, flanked by the bridesmaids and groomsmen and the President and Mrs. Grant at their left, received the congratulations of the guests invited to the reception. The bride looked very pretty, as with a deep rose color mantling her cheeks she blushingly received the compliments of her friends. She, like her lovely sister, Mrs. Potter Palmer, is petite in stature, with dark raven hair, flashing black eyes, tiny ears and pearly teeth. As the guests entered the parlor they were introduced to Mr. and Mrs. Honore, the father and mother of the bride. The reception lasted until shortly after six o'clock P. M.

Departure of the Newly Married Couple.

The bride and groom left the same evening for St. Louis, and during the honeymoon they will also visit Cincinnati and Washington.

Distinguished Guest Presents.

Proget and Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Spencer.

What the Bride and Bridesmaids Wore.

The bride's dress was simply elegant. It was originally intended that she should wear an elaborately trimmed white satin, so an exquisite fabric of the creamy tint, known as orange-blossom satin, peculiarly adapted and intended for bridal attire, was purchased. Before, however, it was made, her sister, Mrs. Potter Palmer, had ordered for her, from Brussels, a robe of exquisite Duchesse point. The satin was, therefore, used merely as an underdress, and the details of its make simplified. The front breadth and first gores were cut to fit the figure closely and had no trimming on them, but at the sides seams were cut in battlements and lapped over on to the back widths. These formed a very long train, which latter was finished on the bottom by a side plaited flounce. The chatelaine corsage was cut high, with Marie Antoinette sleeves, trimmed with satin plaitings and lace flounces. These flouncings were made to match the overdress, as was also the lace garniture of the corsage, and formed a part of it. The dress itself was not the ordinary point, which is really intended to do service as a shawl, but a full trained skirt, falling to the hem of the satin dress and gracefully looped with orange blossoms and stephanotis. The same flowers formed a half wreath on the corsage and completed the ornamentation of the sleeves. The veil of filmy tulle that finished this simply elegant costume fell to the dress hem, and was fastened by an aigrette of white blossoms, from which a pendant wreath outlined the left side of the veil throughout its entire length. Her ornaments were diamonds presented by her brother-in-law, Mr. Potter Palmer, and in her hand she carried tube roses and stephanotis being the principal ones. The other side upon which they were mounted was of white satin covered with Duchesse point. The hair was parted on the side and rolled in a twist, à la Grec.

AN ELEGANT FAN OF NATURAL FLOWERS,

The peculiarity of the bridesmaids' costumes consisted in the fact of the colors being different from those usually selected and the garniture being formed of feathers instead of flowers. The dresses were of the finest, sheerest tarletan, more delicate than crêpe lisse. Of course they fitted the figure closely in front, with all the fulness gathered in the back. They were not worn over silk slips, but skirts of the same airy fabric, which gave them exquisite lightness and grace. The back breadths of these were trimmed with elaborate plaitings, while the fronts were covered with triple aprons. Two of these dresses were trimmed with mauve feathers, the other two with rose color. These trimmings outlined the triple aprons, thus passing in three rows around the front. They also decorated the waists and sleeves, and ostrich tips of the same hue formed the ornaments for the hair, where they were fastened by jewelled aigrettes. The gloves matched the trimmings of the dresses, Miss Hall and Miss Houston wearing mauve and Miss Dunlevy and Miss Rucker rose color. These young ladies also carried flower fans, but distinguished from the bride's by being composed of blossoms the same hue as their gloves and dress trimmings. Roses for two of the young ladies and heliotrope for the other two.

How the Lady Guests were Attired.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Honoré, wore an ashes of rose satin, trimmed with Chantilly lace; a flounce of satin on the bottom, half a yard in depth, was covered with Chantilly flounce of the same width. The basque was trimmed to correspond with point lace at the neck and wrists, and her ornaments were stone cameos set with pearls. Mrs. President Grant wore a lavender satin, the tablier being elaborately trimmed with ruffles and plaiting of silk, piped and lined with a darker shade. The demitrain had deeper flounces, the whole being complicated in design and execution, and giving the impression of elaborate workmanship on the part of the modiste. The garniture of the corsage was point lace; the ornaments were diamonds. Mrs. Potter Palmer, the lovely sister of the bride, charmed everybody with her courteous demeanor, and was quite as much the centre of attraction as the bride herself. Her dress was a beautiful combination of pale pearl color, with the deepest shade of cardinal color for facings. Two ruffles, nine inches deep, passed around the train and tablier. These had inch-wide headings, lined with cardinal shade, which showed at every plait. The tablier was made pointed, falling low on the right side and looped high on the other. Around this passed a wreath of roses, tea, pink and deep red, with dark foliage, while a deep fringe fell below them. The same flowers looped the back and held the sash, which was composed of the two colors. The basque was cut in a postillion at the back and faced with the cardinal color, which showed sufficiently to heighten the effect. The corsage had a group of roses on the front, while the foliage and buds passed back over the shoulder. Her ornaments were very handsome diamonds and a group of roses decorated her hair.

The next on our list, who divided the honors with his beautiful mother, was young Master Honoré Palmer. This young gentleman, who has arrived at the mature age of eight months, was the most elegantly attired of any of the guests. An exquisite robe of peach organdie was trimmed on the bottom, first with a two-inch-wide Valenciennes insertion, finished with a flounce of the same lace four inches wide. The yoked sleeves were composed entirely of lace, and the robe was worn over a blue silk slip, and tied at the waist with a broad blue silk sash.

Mrs. Benjamin Honoré, an aunt of the bride, wore an elaborate dress of lilac satin and Chantilly lace, a narrow plaiting being on the bottom, and a row of lace two inches wide above. There was a wide, box-plaited flounce of satin, over which and nearly covering it was a deep Chantilly flounce. A Chantilly point was draped behind, the cords falling in front, these being caught together with bunches of English violets. The basque was covered with a lace cuirass; lace flounces were on the sleeves and a garniture of violets completed the toilet. Her ornaments were diamonds.

Mrs. General Custer wore a dress of pale lilac silk, trimmed with deep purple. The train was of pale silk, the flounces being relieved by deep purple. A triple pointed apron was in front, with French folds and pipings of the light silk. Plain pointed basque of dark silk, piped with a light shade; point lace ruffles at the neck and wrists.

Mrs. Hall, mother of one of the bridesmaids, wore a black silk, with wide organdie plaitings, over which were two deep Chantilly flounces. A Chantilly shawl was draped from the shoulders, while her ornaments were jets. Mrs. Judge Fowler, of Springfield, Ill., wore an elegant black silk costume, trimmed with puffs running obliquely across the tablier, with jet fringe. The train was of velvet, with velvet sash, and her hat was trimmed with blue, with blush roses. Her daughter, a young miss not yet introduced, wore a pale blue silk dress, with knife plaitings on the bottom and waist, and a pretty garniture of flowers completing this pretty and simple girlish costume.

Mrs. Jonathan Young Scammon wore a dress of lavender silk, with a satin overdress, trimmed with broad Valenciennes lace. This overskirt was pointed, and was composed of three bands of the satin and three rows of the lace. A satin sash looped the train, this being also trimmed with lace, while a Valenciennes cuirass covered the corsage.

Miss Schuttler wore a dress of pearl colored silk, trimmed on the tablier, with plaitings of black silk and lace. A point d'Alençon shawl was gracefully draped from her shoulders, and an opera bonnet completed the costume. Mrs. Payson wore a purple satin, elegantly trimmed with Chantilly lace. A Chantilly lace overdress and reception bonnet, with lace trimmings and long half-wreath of pansies, composed one of the most distingué toilets at the reception.

Mrs. Kerfoot wore a dress of black velvet, a black lace shawl being thrown over her shoulders, her bonnet of black velvet, ornamented with pale pink ostrich feathers and roses, and her gloves matching the feathers in her bonnet. Miss Judd wore a delicate toilet of pale blue and pink. The dress was of blue silk, with a tablier of knife plaited ruffles in the two colors, placed alternately in curved lines. The pink silk was introduced in "Watteau" fold behind, and also lined the sashes. The corsage was a pink cuirasse, with blue sleeves, and she wore turquoise ornaments. Miss Kittie Arnold, daughter of the Hon. J. N. Arnold, wore a full costume of crêpe lisse, the overdress being trimmed with a very handsome fringe. Miss McDougall wore an elaborate costume of apricot color. The entire tablier was of folds forming points and overlapping in the centre where they met. The train had an elaborate trimming of ruffles and puffs, while blue convolvuli and white rosebuds in long bouquets looped and ornamented the dress. Corsage the same. Flowers were in her hair and she wore handsome coral jewelry. Mrs. Borie wore a dress of light pearl silk, trimmed with flounces and knife plaiting, which were bound and faced with dark plum color. Her ornaments were diamonds.

Miss Stager wore a dress of pale lemon faille, broad box-plaited flounces as trimming, and her overdress a Chambery gauze, matching the dress in shade. Long garlands of red and pink wild roses, with dark variegated foliage, draped the overdress. Miss Rosie Jones wore a beautiful dress of pale blue silk, caught up with a pouff. The low corsage had a vine of embroidery in the natural colors of the flowers passing around the neck.

Similar vines and hair leaves were of the tablier. Mrs. Noyes wore a last year's costume, designed by Worth, and in one of his strange combinations three shades were used, the darkest being a claret color, the lightest a raise écrasée and an intermediate harmonizing shade; the sides were arranged in squares of ruffles of the three colors, and in each of these was a plaited end of pale blue silk, trimmed with fringe. It was decidedly striking in effect. Miss Jaeger was in an elegant dress of pink silk, with overdress of pink Chambery gauze, trimmed with lace. Miss Farwell wore a combination of blue and apricot, the dress being of apricot, with the ruffles faced and piped in blue; a Chantilly lace overdress and fichu completed this, and her ornaments were coral.

A very striking costume was worn by another lady. This was composed of light fawn colored velvet, the skirt being trimmed with ruffles of silk bound with velvet. A Watteau plait formed the train, composed alternately of silk and velvet. Velvet bows were placed on this plait, the corsage being of the light cordial colored velvet approaching scarlet. This was cut low and trimmed with a berthe of point lace, while a ruche of tulle finished it around the neck. The corsage was pointed and laced in the back and a very narrow tablier of the velvet was composed of four vertical puffs of the velvet. Mrs. McCormick wore a light silk, apricot color, with pin stripes of blue. This was bound with a contrasting color. A lace shawl and reception bonnet completed the costume. Mrs. Badger wore a pale lavender silk, with point lace trimming.

Miss Badger was attired in a French muslin, with Valenciennes insertion and lace trimmings in the overskirt and waist, and her ornaments were roses. Mrs. Whitehead wore a rich black moire antique, with Chantilly trimmings, and her ornaments were diamonds. Mrs. Rogers was dressed in black silk and Chantilly lace flowers. Miss Rogers wore a lemon colored silk, with an overdress of blue crêpe lisse. Her sister was dressed in a pale blue silk, with pink trimmings, and she wore coral jewelry and wild roses in her hair.

The Trousseau.

Among the many elegant dresses which were imported to form a portion of Miss Honoré's trousseau we may mention the following:—First, an exquisite dress of pink faille. The skirt of this dress had a gathered flounce passing entirely around the front widths and long, sweeping train. On the edge of this ruffle were three narrow overlapping ruffles, about an inch and a half in width, bound with silk. This wide ruffle was beaded by two bands, first laid in plaits about an eighth of a yard in width when finished. These bands were then folded together in a peculiar style and fastened just above the ruffle. Then a very wide piece of silk was again laid in loose folds and tied in graceful knots. This passed around the skirt and train and was lost beneath the apron overskirt. The back breadths of the train were arranged in a Watteau fold, and each side of this the breadths were gathered in a pouffe. The apron front fell just below the trimming on the underskirt and long, broad arrow-shaped tabs fell at the side. This was trimmed all around with a wide band of ostrich feathers, from beneath which fell a deep silk fringe. The basque was somewhat of a postillion-shape, but one of those peculiar French modifications. The trimming on the neck of this formed a peculiar-shaped collar and ruff. This was in flutes from the front to the shoulder seam, whence it is turned down in a rounded collar, finished at the neck by flutes, the whole held in place by wire. Delicate bindings and pipings finished this, and a band of ostrich feathers passed entirely around the basque. Crêpe lisse flutings, over which were flutings of Valenciennes lace, finished the neck and sleeves, altogether forming a perfect evening dress.

AN EXQUISITE DRESS

of mauve silk and crêpe de Chine was made as follows:—The back of the train was the new Watteau plait that gives that peculiar hang to the dress now so desirable, but slightly en poufe at the back. From this plait, extending around the side breadths to the front, was a graduated trimming of triple box plaiting, edged with a knife plaiting at the bottom that made a full sort of rosette at each plait. The tops of these were turned over. The very narrow tablier was a succession of loose puffs with ruffles of wide point d'Alençon between. The overskirt nearly met at the waist, passed over the side breadths and was caught together below the pouffe with wide fringed sashes and loops. This was all finished with an intricate trimming of the crêpe de Chine and the wide point lace. There was also a puffing of crêpe de Chine up the side. Bouquets of autumn leaves and wild roses with delicate mauve ostrich tips fastened the sash, and were also arranged on one side. The basque of this dress was very beautiful in design. It is impossible to describe the peculiar folding in the back of the basque; but the sides seemed to cross each other, and were fastened with bouquets like those on the skirt, with the delicate ostrich tip forming a portion of the garniture. Nothing more unique than this combination of feathers and flowers, with the delicate point lace, could be imagined. This lace formed a ruff over crêpe lisse. Ruffles of lace on the sleeves and a bouquet at each cuff, with one at the side of the neck, finished this elegant costume. The lace also passed around the entire basque, and was headed with the crêpe de Chine trimming.

A GEM OF FASHION.

Another elegant dress was of the rose gros grain. Around the entire train were two wide side plaitings, about seven inches in width. The back of this dress was en poufe, while the entire side were covered with a succession of bound ruffles and side plaitings about two inches in width. These were alternated from the top plaiting to the wrists. Over this was the most exquisite apron of crêpe de Chine. It was deep and quite wide and was in broad horizontal puffs about six inches in width. Between these were wide full wreaths of violets and tea roses, making a succession of puffs and wreaths over the tablier from the hem of the dress to the waist. In was in perfect French taste, and one of those combinations only possible to a French artiste. Wide sashes, which were really a continuation of the apron, fell over the back of the train, the whole completed with an elegant knotted fringe, and caught together at the back with a bouquet of violets. The basque of this dress was trimmed with shirred puffs around the neck, it being cut pompadour. Inside of this were plaitings of crêpe lisse and point lace. The bottom of the basque was trimmed with knotted fringe and puffings. Bows and folds curiously combined finished the skirt of the basque at the back, and were relieved by a wide, long half-wreath, half-bouquet, of the violets and roses. The same trimming, with lisse and lace ruffles, finished the sleeves, while a dainty bouquet was placed at the side of the neck. A more lovely and elegant costume was never designed.

THE CHEF D'ŒUVRE OF THE MODISTE.

A dress combining Nile green and sage colored silks was the next one in this elegant trousseau which is worthy of description. The dress was of the Nile green, the trimmings of the darker silk. A side plaiting on the bottom was of the sage green lined with the Nile green, turned up at the bottom so the lacing was visible. It was beaded by a fan plaiting of Nile and sage green, folded in such a manner as to show both colors, reversing them in the tiny fans. The tablier was made of puffs formed by reverse plaitings. At each side of these were loose gathered puffs placed longitudinally on the first side gore and finished with narrower fans. The back of this dress had first a box-plaited flounce bound with sage green, with an inch-wide heading lined with sage green. Above this the skirt was covered with three deep puffs, gathered and falling over the seam at the bottom, while at the top they were plaited in such a manner as to show the inner lining of sage green. The basque of this dress was finished with a box plaiting of sage green, bound and faced similarly to that on the skirt. The sleeves were made of longitudinal puffs of the Nile green silk and finished with the side plaitings of the sage green. A peculiar neck trimming, being an entirely new shaped combination of collar and ruff, completed this. Point Duchesse lace completed the neck and sleeves of this dress.

Still another evening dress was of

DELICATE BLUE SILK.

The train of this was finished with a succession of knife plaitings, four in number, which were about three inches in width. Above these was a ruffle, three and a half inches wide, of the silk, the centre of which was gathered in seven half-inch shirrs and the top finished by another standing ruffle. These ruffles were exquisitely finished with pipings and bindings. The train of this dress was caught up en pouffe. The side widths were finished in curved trimmings, similar to that on the bottom of the skirt, sweeping gracefully from waist to hem. The box plaitings were on the outside edges, with shirrs and ruffles between, making a graduated trimming, about six inches at the waist and twelve at the hem. An apron covered the front, deep and pointed. This had a broad band of blue ostrich feathers all around it, and beneath it was a six-inch deep fringe of crimped silk tape finishing the whole. Bows were also placed down one side of the skirt. The waist of this dress was a still different and more complicated form of basque. The fringe and trimming passed all around it. The neck had a curiously plaited trimming, inside of which was a ruff of point appliqué, and below which passed a band of the feather trimming. The sleeves were rather wide, with broad cuffs of the silk, finished with lace and feathers, and a charming, indescribable bow of silk.

AN ELEGANT WHITE SILK,

had a deep flounce on the train edged with an exquisite white embroidered lace, with a standing ruffle of the same at the head of it. This train was caught up en pouffe, with the Watteau plait falling below. The new triple apron composed this tablier. Each apron was finished with the elegant lace described above, edged with a garland of wild flowers. These caught up the pouffe and were trailed and festooned with the wide sash that completed it. The basque of this was plainer in design, but so elegantly trimmed with bands of the lace, finished with garlands of flowers, that it seemed more elaborate than some of the more intricate ones. The sleeves had double frills of the lace trimmed with garlands and tiny bouquets fastened the front.

A LAVENDER SILK,

the color our grandmothers wore, and which we are having the good taste to assume again, was richly trimmed with the finest Valenciennes. A three-inch box plaiting passed around the edge of the skirt, and above it a wide plaiting. This dress had two puffs in the back. Passing around the entire skirt, above the plaitings, was the trimming of Valenciennes. This consisted of an insertion two inches wide, with three rows of rich wide lace on both sides, slightly gathered. At the top of this was a lace an inch and a half wide, while the ruffle at the bottom of it was three inches wide. This formed the most exquisite lace trimming and was applied to the dress like a broad band. Two similar rows of trimming were placed semi-circularly on the front, as if describing a double apron. The waist was trimmed to match the skirt, with a narrow pointed tabs in front, accompanied this, as well as an exquisite French hat.

A silk dress of the new shade known as le de Bohême in its darkest tint, trimmed with a lighter shade almost like that known as fraise ecrassé. This dress had also the plaited train, while the other widths of the dress were covered with a series of aprons in the alternating shades, each being trimmed with a knife plaiting of silk two inches in width. The basque of this was trimmed to match with knife plaitings on the edge and a rolling collar, also exhibiting the two tints.

A turquoise blue silk was elaborately embroidered by hand in wreaths of coral sprigs and delicate blossoms. This elegant garniture decorated skirt, apron and basque. It quite defied description, so unique were its drapings.

A dark metal colored silk, intended for driving or a small reception, had linings and facings of pale blue; a mantle, with a hood lined with blue, also accompanies this, and a hat to match.

THE PRIDE OF THE TROUSSEAU.

Last but not least in this magnificent trousseau was another elegant dress of plume colored velvet and silk. The train was of velvet, with a puffed back, and buttoned over on to the silk petticoat with large embroidered buttons. The velvet flounce was laid in broad, double and triple box-plaits, edged both top and bottom with a knife plaiting of silk and passed across the silk front, and was lost in the velvet folds behind. An apron of maletasse silk, very deep, covered the front. This was trimmed with a broad band of velvet and finished with a wide fancy fringe. This was caught at one side by a plaited band of the plain silk and made a sort of fan-shaped piece falling over the pouffe. The cuirasse was singularly designed. The entire back was of the velvet, which formed also a collar on the fronts. The fronts were of maletasse, and the sleeves of the plain silk, with cuffs of the two other fabrics. A similar fringe to that on the skirt, in narrower width, finished the sleeves. Ruffles of round point.

Beautiful wraps of all descriptions, among which a sortie du val of mauve satin was very lovely, and an opera cloak of white maletasse was conspicuous. The opera cloak was trimmed with heavy fancy fringe and bands of white feathers. Morning robes, exquisite laces and gleaming jewels were also temptingly beautiful; but we must turn away from all these dainty and lovely things to other matters which demand our attention.

THE BRIDE'S TRAVELLING DRESS

deserves notice, being most elegant in fabric and yet so quiet in style and color as to seem almost unpretentious—certainly not calculated to attract any attention to the newly-wedded bride. It was of that dark shade of brown known as pain-brulé, and the shades of color were formed by the difference in fabric. The underskirt was of gros grain, trimmed on the bottom with knife plaitings and two standing frills for a heading, the whole trimming covering the skirt for about nine inches in depth. The overdress was a polonaise of camel's hair matelasse, an entirely new fabric, very heavy and warm. The front of this had a plastron of velvet, narrowing at the waist and then widening toward the bottom, being about fifteen inches wide at the hem; this was edged on each side with a border of gray ostrich feathers; a facing of velvet and feathers passed around the edge of the garment; velvet cuffs trimmed with feathers, finished the sleeves; a velvet lacing was inserted vertically at the back of the skirt, which was simply but effectively draped. Accompanying this, for very cold weather, was an extra jacket, which seemed to combine the best features of the new French sacque and last season's English jacket, but could not really be classed with either. This also had velvet mousquetaire cuffs and facings, with velvet pockets, the whole being finished with the feather bands. The hat was of fine felt, matching the dress in color, and was trimmed with velvet and feathers; the velvet the same shade as the hat, with ostrich tips, in the natural gray hue, both in front and at the back, and a gray wing with the slightest suspicion of color at the side; the face trimmings were blue, with just a tiny bunch of gray leaves. It was rather low in shape, with a slightly curved brim, and quite guiltless of the dashing appearance of most modern millinery. The gloves also matched the dress, while for further comfort a muff of the same material as the overdress was trimmed to match with velvet facings and a band of gray ostrich feathers around each edge, while a bow and long ends of gros grain ribbon completed it.

The Presents.

Bridal gifts have a tendency to run to silver, and in general spoons of every manner and shape are the favorite offerings made to a newly married couple. Miss Honoré, however, has been rather fortunate, as the little remembrances sent to her by her friends are, happily, of a varied order. The following is a list of the presents:—

A diamond cross and earrings, from Mr. Potter Palmer. The solitaire earrings are very handsome, and the stones in the cross clear and of great size.

A flower stand, in crystal and silver, from the Secretary of War, Mr. Belknap.

A large case of silver ladles and a case of silver spoons, by Mr. Harry H. Honoré, the bride's second brother.

A silver ice cream spoon, from Miss Dunlevy, one of the bridesmaids.

A silver nut spoon, from Colonel and Mrs. Sheridan.

A silver card rack, designed like an open oyster from Mr. and Mrs. James W. Paul.

Two bronze figures (mantel ornaments), from Major Frank Paul.

A dozen silver butter dishes and a dozen silver salt cellars, from Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel.

A set of silver ice cream spoons and ladle, from General Sheridan.

A cross and earrings of pearls, very handsome, from Mrs. Benjamin Honoré.

A costly pearl necklace, from Mrs. U. S. Grant.

An enamelled watch, chain and locket, from Colonel Frederick Dent Grant.

A heavy gold chain and locket, from George W. Childs.

A gold necklace, from Ulysses S. Grant, Jr.

A brooch and earrings, Roman mosaic, set in Etruscan gold, from Adrian Honoré, the eldest brother of the bride.

An inlaid inkstand, from Attorney General Williams.

A pair of opera glasses, from Mr. Lockwood Honoré.

A jewelry box of oxidized silver, from Mr. and Mrs. Hall.

A silver card case, from Mr. Winchester Hall.

A card tray of china, with silver stand and border, from Howard and Gaythen Hall.

A point lace overdress, fan and handkerchief from Mrs. Potter Palmer.

Large photograph album, from Watt K. Honoré; silver butter knives and spoons, from Oscar Finley; fish knife and fork, from Judge and Mrs. Beckwith; salad fork and spoon, from Miss Beck with; bronze mantel ornament, from Mr. and Mrs. Mark Skinner; pastry knife and spoon, from Miss Houston; gold and bronze jewel case, from Lieutenant Larned, United States Army; Bohemian vases, from General George A. Forsyth; companion oil paintings, from A. S. Rockwell; fan, from General and Mrs. Babcock; silver toilet set, from Mr.

ANTI-TAMMANY.

The Nominating Mass Meeting at Cooper Institute Last Night.

THE CANDIDATES NOMINATED.

Oswald Ottendorfer for Mayor and Patrick H. Jones for Register.

THE ALDERMEN AT LARGE.

Speeches by Congressman Creamer, Messrs. Ellinger, Niles and Others.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

The mass meeting of the independent democrats last evening at Cooper Institute was a success. The private doors, through which persons who had been furnished with cards of admission alone were allowed to pass, were opened to the favored few as early as seven o'clock. At least 200 voters, nearly all politicians of the small fry order, and who have been dropped from the rolls of the Wigwam for reasons best known to themselves, obtained admission in this way. The police, too, filed in at this time through the private door, about twenty of whom were at once ordered to scatter themselves "promiscuous," as a darky would say, among the audience when the crowds were permitted to enter, while a large number were made to stand, sentinel like, along the walls, where they were able to command a good view of the audience in the body of the room and the doorways. About half-past seven the doors on the Astor place side of the building were unlocked and of the crowd, who had been patiently waiting outside for nearly an hour, began. For a few minutes even the police were unable to preserve order, and had in the end to allow the eager auditors to scramble into the empty front seats over other seats, regardless of consequences to the chairs or themselves. In less than five minutes every seat was occupied, and even the aisles and the open spaces behind the last row of seats near the entrances were taken possession of by the standees. The platform was soon afterward adorned by the presence of several of the gentlemen who have been somewhat active in the organization of the opposition to Tammany, among others Morris Ellinger, William W. Niles, Thomas E. Stewart, General John Foster, Theodore Glaubensklee, Horatio N. Twombly, George Beatty, Isaac H. Hunter (colored), ex-Alderman Raide, Judge "Tony" Hartman, and John Price. It finally fell to the lot of Thomas E. Stewart to open the ball, and he did so without any preliminary speech, simply contenting himself with nominating Thomas J. Creamer as the chairman of the meeting. The nomination was well received and declared carried by an overwhelming "Aye." Mr. Creamer's speech was listened to attentively and its most striking points against Tammany were loudly applauded.

Throughout he bore patiently with the confusion and often turned the tables upon some obstreperous anti-independent by some joke which at once carried the audience with him. Two men, rather the worse for liquor, whose interruptions were as nonsensical as they were uncalled for, had to be put out by the police. There seemed to be one man in the city, despite the divided feelings of the crowd on general matters relating to Tammany Hall, who had and that was Andrew H. Green. The mention of his name quite incidentally by Mr. Creamer drew forth a storm of hisses and cat calls that might have convinced even the doubting Comptroller himself that his unpopularity was not, after all, a myth and confined exclusively to contractors who defraud the city governments. It was with the stoppage of work on the public improvements last winter, when honest, poor men had to go to the soup houses to keep body and soul together and sleep in the station houses at night that his name was coupled and, doubtless, many of the men in the audience knew only too well by experience how, through Green's pigheadedness, they had been obliged to "go idle" all the winter with their families starving.

THE MEETING.

Shortly after eight o'clock Mr. Thomas E. Stewart nominated as chairman of the meeting Mr. Thomas J. Creamer, who, on presenting himself, was received with loud applause.

Mr. CREAMER said they had been told for the past week, since the nominations made at Tammany Hall, that it would be too late to organize to make any opposition to the candidates nominated at that ancient and venerable institution; that it would be impossible for the democracy to organize in time and to associate with those of all parties desirous of making opposition to the ticket. He thought if John Kelly and John Morrissey, together with John Wickham and John Morrissey Hayes—(laughter)—were present they would see there was a thorough organization, that the people were in the field, that they had right upon their side and that they had brought about an organization that would achieve victory. (cheers.) We assemble as democrats anxious for no result so much as for the success of the democracy in the coming elections and reform in our local government, believing that only by the return of the democratic party to power can the country realize its highest anticipations of power and prosperity. We assemble as democrats, to protest against the efforts of an ignoble and grasping cabal to seize upon the government of this great metropolis—to prostrate and defeat the party in the State and nation, merely to gain power in the city—to sacrifice a Tilden for a Wickham. (Cheers). For, gentlemen, as democrats, we can never hope to win any national triumph so long as the party in New York is a mere machine in the hands of a ring. This is the first immediate feature of our protest. The democratic party might to-day be in the undisturbed possession of the national government but for the Tammany ring. The selfishness of that ring brought upon the democracy measureless disasters, and we are now asked to permit a defeat no less sweeping and irretrievable—to consent to the sacrifice of Tilden in order to secure the election of a Wickham. This is our view, as democrats; but there is another view which appeals to us all as citizens of this great metropolis. While I could not ask you to waver in your party faith, it seems to me that the time has come when party questions should not enter into the government of this city. We have no political interests to serve to be compared to the welfare and splendor of New York. And it might well be advanced as a cardinal point in the creed of a reformed democracy, that all election for charter offices should be upon an independent basis. We should elect men who would govern the city well, and would contribute to its greatness, who would extend and beautify its suburbs, who would make it like Paris or London—queen among cities, our metropolis and emporium—and not men who have sound views upon Louisiana and free trade, but unsound views upon the city treasury. (Cheers.) We have so often seen the election of our city officers determined by the prevailing political feeling on national issues, that the experiment of universal suffrage in municipal management might be called a failure. For the last ten years mayors have been elected in New York, not because of their fitness for the management of the city business, but because they had certain views on national affairs. If there is one office in the world where business fitness and honesty are required, it is in the Mayoralty. Mr. Hall testified, you will remember, that in a few days alone he was called upon to sign a thousand warrants upon the treasury. He was the check, as it were, upon an annual expenditure of $35,000,000. Certainly if any merchant in this city had as vast a business he would select as his mayor or manager a man who could read and write and cipher, who knew what was just and square; who would neither steal nor permit others to steal, and not the bosom friend or a political ring. Gentlemen, this is the soul of our reform movement, that the business interests of New York shall be managed by business men on business principles; upon that issue we ask all men, without distinction of political creed, to unite with us. The Tammany nominations simply mean that Mr. W. H. Wickham is to be Mayor to divide the loaves and fishes among the friends of John Kelly. He would never be Mayor of New York in the high and full sense of that great dignity, only the chief butler of John Kelly. In the celebrated novel of "Ivanhoe" there is a description of the thraldom imposed upon the Saxons by William of Normandy. They wore a brass ring resembling a dog's collar, on which was engraved in Saxon characters, "Gurth, the son of Beowulph, is the born thrall of Cedric of Rotherwood." while another bore this inscription, "Wamba, the son of Witless, is the thrall of Cedric of Rotherwood." In this contest, gentlemen, Wickham and Hayes are the Wamba and Gurth of the canvass, and around their necks they wear a collar, that they are the born thrals of John Kelly and John Morrissey, the Cedrics, not of Rotherwood, but of Tammany Hall. By the very law of the Tammany party as now organized, no man can accept a nomination who does not consent to be the slave of John Kelly and John Morrissey. Mr. Wickham is now in this attitude. If he is a man of honor he will redeem the promises which make him the slave of the ring. If he is not a man of honor and attempts to break these bonds, then is he unfit to be Mayor. There is no escape, therefore, from the position he has assumed, and I call upon you, gentlemen, to resolve now and here that this must come to an end. I call upon you to resolve that this great city shall not be governed by a new ring or by the remnants of an old one. (Cheers.) I call upon you to insist that in our city affairs we shall have a civil service reform. Upon that issue, alone, we can appeal with confidence to the people. We want the thousands of men who serve the city to be elected for their merit and fitness, and to be kept in office during good behavior, and not because they are the obedient servants of Mr. Kelly and Mr. Morrissey. As democrats we have declaimed and protested against political corruption, nepotism and the debasement of office into patronage. We have complained of Grant and his followers for their betrayal of civil service reform, and yet in New York we have now and have had a system a hundred times more infamous and shameless. This system makes every one of the thousands of useful, industrious poor men who serve the city dependent upon the will of a ring. From the skilled auditor who guards the ways to the treasury, to the plodding laborer who throws up earth upon a boulevard, there is no principle of selection or appointment except the principle of ring service. Now, we propose that this shall end; that we shall have municipal civil service reform; that in other words, business men shall hold offices on business principles and as long as they are honest and true. This we lay down as an essential point in our platform; and, after this, we come to another—namely, the development of New York. We do not believe with the men now in power that reform means paralysis and decay. (cheers.) Gentlemen, New York is now a paralyzed city. The ring that plundered it has gone, and it is in the hands of a ring that purposes to smother it. Taxation goes up, rents advance. We have seen the false policy of suspending all labor in a financial crisis. Our streets are in a frightful condition. There is unusual suffering and depression in all business. Last winter private charity saved thousands of poor from want, and the prospect for this winter is no brighter. The city recedes and does not advance. The spirit of improvement is dead, and New York seems about to follow in the decay which for years overtook New Orleans and Panama and Vera Cruz. Now, gentlemen, it was never intended by any body of honest business men and citizens in reform movement that reform was to mean the suffocation of the city. No men have a greater pride in this city than we who propose to reform it. We want New York to be the metropolis of America and worthy of metropolitan greatness. We want to have streets as fine as those in Paris, parks as noble as those in London, and docks as capacious and splendid as those of Liverpool. We are about to celebrate the centennial anniversary of the national independence, and when our friends come from abroad we want to show them a mighty and glorious city, her greatness written upon her streets like a diadem on the brow, and not a shabby, forlorn, dishonored aggregation of houses. We want them to see the living splendors of New York and not the ruins of Tammany Hall. Our city credit should be as high as that of the Bank of England. There is no reason why it should not be so and why we should not fund our debt at four per cent and thus save $3,000,000 a year in taxation alone. Therefore, gentlemen, reform means advance, liberal and honest expenditure for the benefit of the people and the welfare of the city. (Cheers.) To me, then, there is no feature of this reform movement more attractive than this. I am convinced that, with the accession of honest business men to office, the people will insist upon the improvement and decoration of the city. Upon these issues we ask you with confidence to unite with us in this revolt against the Morrissey and Kelly Ring. We ask you to continue now, but on a higher and more substantial basis, the reform movement that was begun three years ago. A junta so dead even to political consistency as to nominate in one district a free trader like Cox, and in another a protectionist like Hewitt. We ask you to unite with us in the establishment of civil service in New York, so that nowest men may serve the city without trembling at the behests of the Ring—to assist in restoring the direction of city affairs to business men—to begin the work of restoring the industry and credit of New York, giving life where there is now paralysis, doing our part toward the splendor and usefulness of the city. (Cheers.) Gentlemen, in this work to which we invite you it is necessary to destroy the present Tammany Ring finally and forever—to complete the noble reform movement which commenced three years ago, and thus enter without distinction of party upon a new career of municipal economy and progress, of the development of metropolitan greatness and of the restoration of honest and noble city to a position of splendor and renown worthy of the emporium of America. "Patience, courage, labor, manhood, are the stars that govern the career of mortals." In this contest let us show that we are not slaves, but freemen; our rights knowing, and, knowing, dare to maintain them. (Cheers.)

Colonel Gane then read a list of the Presidents Vice-Presidents and Secretaries of the meeting, which was adopted.

REMARKS OF EX-JUDGE A. A. THOMPSON.

Ex-Judge Thompson said:—I move that a committee of twenty-five be named by the Chair, to be appointed by the Chairman, to make nominations for Mayor, Register and Aldermen, and in doing so permit me to make a few remarks. It may not be known to this meeting that two short years ago the present nominee of Tammany Hall for Mayor, Mr. Wickham—against whom I have not a word to say—was engaged in exposing the corruptions of Tammany Hall. He was most ferocious against Tammany. The gentleman who proposed the name of Mr. Wickham (Mr. Henry L. Clinton) not long ago exhausted the whole vocabulary in applying the severest epithets in denunciation of Tammany. Your committee considered the interests of terms. Of late years Tammany had fallen into such disrepute that they were obliged to go outside of the organization to find decent people to nominate for their support. To all of us this meeting is a magnificent sight. There are 5,000 men here to-night, who, by their presence, show they are determined to bid defiance to all political organizations when they become autocratic and despotic. There are 10,000 men outside. That augurs well for the success of our cause. I see here to-night many high-minded democrats and high-toned republicans, who are with us heart and soul in this movement. Let me say to our democratic friends that the action of the democracy here assembled will add to our State ticket 25,000 votes. (Cheers.) The proceedings of this meeting will be sent over the telegraph. It will be read over the country and it will give joy to the hearts of our democratic friends who know the treachery and scheming of this wretched Tammany Hall on whose neck we have our heel to-night. If this meeting were not held to-night, I am doubtful if we could elect our State ticket. But I think the gentleman who is named for Governor will be elected, and that this victory will be followed in 1876 by a more important victory—a victory that will mark the entry of the nation into the second century of its existence. (Cheers.)

On the motion of the President, the following gentlemen were appointed as a Committee upon the Nominations:—

COMMITTEE OF TWENTY-FIVE.

REMARKS OF MR. W. W. NILES.

Mr. NILES was the next speaker. He commenced by saying that the deceased President, Abraham Lincoln, had, in one of his remarkable sayings, made use of the expression, "There is one thing in which I believe—namely, in a government of the people, by the people, with the people and for the sake of the people." (Applause.) That was a great saying and it would be his text to-night. As set in contradistinction to a government of the people by two or three or ten or five individuals for the sake of officeholders and for the purpose of securing the spoils. He had no particular quarrel about which to contest against John Kelly and John Morrissey, or any other individual; but believed in the election of candidates who alone understood the people and abided by the people. He did not believe either in a republican government or a democratic government, or any kind of government that did not fairly, thoroughly and honestly represent the people. Having dilated at great length upon the corruption in the District of Columbia he proceeded to say that no individual should be elected to office whose ideas were not in conformity with those of the people. Now it is because this movement represents the principle of government by the governed that he consented to a part of the meeting. He had long since decided that nothing can long survive that is not based on truth. He had previously helped to build up the republican party, and if the right principle of government was at the foundation of political movements such movements must triumph; unless party has truth and God and justice on its side—that party must fall. The centralization of power by men who do not represent the people must fail. When such a party gets into power so that they can say, "What are you going to do about it?" that party cannot secure the confidence of the people. It was for this reason that he was opposed to rings and third terms. Applause.) It is only when it can remain long in power that the people are oppressed; it is then, when corruption is abroad, when the carrion stinks in the nostrils of the people, that the carrion seekers gather together. He was not originally a speaker. (Cries of wind up and laughter.) He would only say that those who undertake to control the masses must do as the Scotchman did when he was in love with two lassies. He was a devoted Christian, but not a Christian statesman. One of the lassies was of a wild, impassioned, stormy temper; the other was a mild, gentle girl, but not a believer in creeds, and the lover asked what he should do. The old Scotch minister replied, "Ah! my friend, tak the gentle one, for the grace of God mon abide where a man cannot." (Cries of "wind up" brought the speaker to his chair.)

MR. MORRIS ELLINGER'S REMARKS.

Mr. ELLINGER commenced by saying that Tammany was a party against whom every one should contend. The Germans would not side with Tammany. There was spirit enough in New York to destroy any such influences as the demoralizing tendencies exhibited by Tammany Hall and its patrons during its term of office. People spoke of Cæsarism, but the worst form of Cæsarism was exhibited by the democratic party, especially in this State. Why should democrats despise Cæsarism in the national government when they admired it in the State governments, and when they would foolishly and wickedly submit to it in the State governments? In the State governments Cæsarism was perpetually foisted upon the people. The speaker then, referring to the nomination of Mr. Ottendorfer for Mayor, asked what was the nomination which the people had then made? Who was the individual nominated? What was his nationality? He was a German. He was a democrat, and though a true democrat never had his faith or honesty been violated by corrupt principles or practices. He was the first to put himself in a hostile position to the corrupt practices of Tammany—the first to put himself in opposition to that corrupt clique. He was a foremost member of the Committee of Seventy, and worked hard in connection with that body to secure the downfall of the corrupt ring. The speaker went on at considerable length to praise the noble qualities of Mr. Ottendorfer, and said that though a German, he would be elected, and the Germans would stand by him in spite of opposition. (Cheers.)

THE CANDIDATES.

At the close of the last speech the chairman came forward and announced the result come to by the Committee of Twenty-four, as follows:—

For Mayor—Oswald Ottendorfer. (Cheers and hisses.)

For Register—General Patrick H. Jones. (Cheers.)

For Aldermen at Large—Joseph Blumenthal, Robert Beatty, Thomas B. Wallace, Benjamin F. Beekman.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions were then read and declared adopted amid loud cries of "yeas" and "nays," pretty nearly divided:—

Resolved, That we cordially indorse the nomination of Samuel J. Tilden for Governor and William Dorsheimer for Lieutenant Governor and of the other candidates on the liberal-democratic State ticket, and will give them our earnest support.

Resolved, That while in our general political action we give effect to the views we entertain by supporting candidates of like sentiments, we deem it to be our duty as citizens to support local candidates whose election will aid to relieve our city from the disgraceful rule of two unworthy and incompetent men, and that we invite all good citizens, irrespective of party, to unite with us in the accomplishment of that object.

Resolved, That while the domination of John Morrissey and John Kelly appears only to concern the democratic rulers of this city, yet the power they wield by means of the great Tammany fraud deeply affects the entire community. If the attempt they have boldly made to impose upon the city for two of its most important offices candidates who have been expressly presented as their personal representatives shall be successful, the city will be subjected to the humiliation of being arbitrarily ruled by two men who do not possess respect or confidence, and who are in no sense representative men of the worth and honesty of its citizens.

Resolved, That we present the ticket nominated this evening by the people of this city as one eminently deserving of all citizens of all parties; the candidates have been selected for their fitness and worth, and upon partisan considerations, and they present a combination of strength as representative men of different interests that should combine on their behalf a general and triumphant support.

Resolved, That, at the present crisis of our municipal affairs, all good men should unite in an effort to secure an honest and economical administration of our city government. All classes have a common interest and should join in the common cause. The laboring man, the merchant and the property owner should stand together to maintain the credit and advance the prosperity of our great city. The laboring man needs work, which the city may better give to him, that he may earn his own living, than support him in charity; the merchant needs that every possible facility should be afforded for carrying on a mighty commerce, in which we have our life and strength. The property owner needs that its real estate shall be opened to the use of our best population, and they all need that protection and comfort shall be secured to our whole people, in an efficient manner and at a reasonable expense. We call therefore upon all, of whatever class or condition and of every party, to support candidates who will labor honestly and diligently to secure these great objects.

MR. CREAMER'S CLOSING REMARKS.

FELLOW CITIZENS,—I have but few words to say in conclusion; that is that on election day we shall all march side by side, and reseue it from the great evil which threatens it—Imperialism in any and every shape. (Cheers.) I wish before I end my connection with this meeting and the proceedings attendant upon it, to say a few words, particularly to the gentlemen of the press, as regards the candidates presented to you to-night. I desire to say to the merchant, to the banker, to the lawyer, to the mechanic and to the laboring man, and to all the citizens of New York interested in good government, that so far as these nominations to-night are concerned, if the candidates are not men equal to the emergency as regards their position in history, it is not the fault of the men into whose hands you gave the nomination in charge. I wish to inform those gentlemen who interest themselves in local politics, particularly to the American democrat who might feel averse to vote for Mr. Ottendorfer because he is not an American, because he is a foreigner, that your committee had at heart the desire to nominate an American born democrat. I desire to say to all such, for all who are influenced wrongfully, I believe in this regard that we, however, did our best to obtain a candidate, and that, too, at Mr. Ottendorfer's special request. Mr. Ottendorfer's ultimatum was that he was opposed to this close corporation in Tammany Hall making its nominations as it did. A German democracy of whom he was the representative, and who will be side by side in the ranks of thousands of other democrats, appointed a committee to suggest to Tammany Hall the propriety of nominating a man bearing the name of the venerable patriot who founded this institution in the hall of which we are meeting to-night—great cheers—the great philanthropist, Peter Cooper. The German democracy of this city, desirous of honoring the son of Peter Cooper, presented to Tammany Hall the name of Edward Cooper as their candidate. What was the result? Their suggestion and their candidate were both spurned with scorn by those gentlemen. Your committee of Conference do not ask for the nomination of Mr. Ottendorfer because he is a German, but simply because they accept in him a man who would be all the Mayor, and not the man who stands behind him. The committee were repulsed because Tammany Hall did not think there would be any opposition to the ticket, or that the committee would show manhood enough to resist the insult, as it even appeared to Samuel J. Tilden (great cheering), who even told me that he has not a better friend living than Oswald Ottendorfer. (Cheers.) Mr. Ottendorfer's statement was this day, when several names were mentioned for the Mayoralty, "Will any of these gentlemen run? Will they remain in the field until election day regardless of all surrendering and all personal considerations? If they will, for God's sake nominate them, as I do not want to be Mayor. I only desire to represent principles. These gentlemen, these American democrats and this American people will find fault with us for not nominating an American." I tell you, and I tell them, that in this instance the Americans showed cowardice, because they would not run unless they were supported by the republicans, while Mr. Ottendorfer comes to the front, and should you be compelled to nominate me I will run to the close of the polls on election day. (Loud cheers.) Gentlemen, this committee tendered me a nomination for a lucrative position in the city. I did not want to place myself in the position, at this time, of an office-seeker. (Laughter.) (A Voice—You could not get it.) Great laughter. I say, my friends, our funny friend outside there, a Tammany Hall man, would not have the privilege of speaking in a Tammany Hall meeting, and we will now good naturedly give him the liberty of saying a little. (Great cheers and laughter.) Now, if John Morrissey were here that man dare not open his mouth. I recollect when that office was tendered to me—the Registership—that that modest retiring little gentleman that had been at the request of Horace Greeley—(loud cheers)—appointed to fill the office, when the chivalrous, gallant, poor Miles O'Reilly passed away and left his widow penniless, that he, Patrick Henry Jones, performed the duties of that office and handed over the proceeds to the widow. (Loud Cheers.) I recollect that Horace Greeley selected him as the man he would trust above all others—the little Irishman, Patrick Henry Jones, who, for months, labored without compensation and without reward. (Cheers.) I thought that this man had some claims upon the offices and upon the citizens, especially as he was a poor man, while his competitor is a rich man, and I nominated him in the meeting of conference, and he is now nominated before you to-night and I trust you will perform your duties in supporting him at the polls. (Loud cheers.)

Mr. CREAMER then announced the meeting adjourned and the audience immediately and quietly dispersed.

TAMMANY ASSEMBLY CONVENTIONS.

Tammany Assembly conventions were held last night in the various Assembly districts for the purpose of nominating candidates for Assembly. The following is a list of the nominees:—

Dist.		Dist.
1—	Nicholas Muller.	12—	John Keenan.
2—	Thomas P. Kirk.	13—	Alfred N. Beach.
3—	John Brogan.	14—	James Daly.
4—	Charles Reilly.	15—	Thomas Costigan.
5—	Warren C. Bennett.	16—	Peter Woods.
6—	Timothy J. Campbell.	17—	Leo C. Dessar.
7—	Adjourned.	18—	Thomas C. Campbell.
8—	George A. Stanf.	19—	Germain Hauschelt.
9—	Ransom Parker, Jr.	20—	Orlando L. Stewart.
10—	Lewis C. Wachner.	21—	John W. Smith.
11—	Oliver P. Buell.

THE FIFTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT.

It seems that Judge Hogan is determined to run against Meade, the Tammany candidate for Congress in the Fifth district. To do this he had to "step down and out" of the General Committee. He did so yesterday as follows:—

NEW YORK, Oct. 20, 1874.

Hon. JOHN KELLY:—

DEAR SIR—I hereby resign as a member of the Tammany Hall General Committee.

RESPECTFULLY,
WILLIAM HOGAN.

TAMMANY'S RATIFICATION.

The democratic ratification meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, October 27, at Tammany Hall, instead of Thursday evening of this week, as originally intended.

INSPECTORS OF ELECTION IN TROUBLE.

The Board of Police sent yesterday a long list of inspectors of election they have removed for violation of the law to the office of the District Attorney for the purpose of obtaining indictments against them from the Grand Jury. Others will be forwarded next week and the system continued until after election. Great commotion has been created among the election officers on account of this action of the Board of Police. It is quite a new thing to hold the inspectors to any accountability of their actions during the days of registration; and trying them for such offences as drinking whiskey, playing cards, being drunk and going away from the places of registration has completely taken them aback. All the policemen detailed at places where the Boards of Registration meet have been ordered to report any and all irregularities they see occurring, and quite a large number of complaints have been, up to the present, sent in. The Board treats these charges in the same way they do complaints against policemen for breaches of the rules. Names of deposed inspectors are forwarded to the District Attorney promptly, so that he may take the proper action prescribed by law. Several prominent candidates for the Penitentiary have already come forward, and it remains to be seen whether this action of the Board of Police will warn the remainder to look sharply after their duties, and not bring themselves within the letter of the law as culprits.

KINGS COUNTY POLITICS.

The primaries of both parties, democratic and republican, were held in each of the twenty-five wards and five county towns last evening, and three delegates were elected from each ward and town to attend the Congressional Assembly County and City Conventions, which will be held on Thursday and Friday respectively of this week. There was a pretty general exhibition of good feeling manifested by both parties, dissensions being confined to ward factions. The number voting was unusually large. The police were in attendance in force, but there was very little demand for their services.

The democratic leaders in caucus have decided upon the following slate, upon which the delegates chosen last evening are supposed to vote:—

Congress.—Second district, John G. Schumaker; Third district, William W. Goodrich; Fourth district, Archibald M. Bliss.

Comptroller.—Samuel J. Powell.

County Auditor.—Maurice Fitzgerald.

City Auditor.—William S. Searing.

District Attorney.—Winchester Britton.

County Treasurer.—Thomas A. Gardiner.

Coroners.—J. B. Jones, Western District; Francis Nolan, Eastern District.

Commissioners of Charities.—W. Bennett, J. Raber and A. J. Brinkerhoff.

Justice of Sessions.—Stephen L. Voornies.

The Republican City Convention will be held at three o'clock this afternoon, and they occupy a combination of strength as representative men of different interests that should combine on their behalf a general and triumphant support.

Brooklyn Registration.

The official returns of the registration in Brooklyn, just prepared by the Police Superintendent, shows the number of voters registered in that city on Monday to have been, by wards, as follows:—

Wards.		Wards.
1	899	14	1,154
2	592	15	1,014
3	887	16	1,677
4	757	17	1,427
5	1,116	18	799
6	1,682	19	1,061
7	1,421	20	1,104
8	779	21	1,131
9	1,222	22	1,022
10	1,292	23	558
11	1,161	24	309
12	1,032	25	660
13	1,116
Total registered Monday			25,088

The total number registered this year in Brooklyn is 70,721, or 4,224 less than was registered in 1872, and 4,000 more than last last year. The vote of Kings county, including the county towns, on next Tuesday week, will be about 73,000.

THE EPISCOPALIANS.

Proceedings Yesterday—Dr. Seymour's Case To Be Decided To-Day—The Bishops on Immoralities and Seceding Prelates.

The Convention reassembled yesterday morning at the usual hour. Drs. Greer, of this city; Smedes, of North Carolina, and Garrett, of Omaha, and Bishop Clarke, of Rhode Island, conducted the religious services. Immediately thereafter Dr. Craik, the President, suggested that as the business of the Convention had accumulated so greatly an open session would be necessary. It was therefore resolved to sit in open session until noon. The Committee on Canons asked for and received back their resolution for the reorganization of the house for amendment.

The Committee on Prayer Book reported unfavorably to the petitions of the several dioceses who have asked for a literal translation of

with the phrase usually termed the filioque omitted.

The Committee on Memorials of Deceased Members reported obituaries of Drs. Dana, of Mississippi; Abney Jackson, Connecticut; Major Hunt, Missouri; P. W. Gray, Texas; John Duncan, Mississippi; Judge Gordon, Alabama; W. T. Read, Delaware; T. R. Johnson, LL. D., New York; R. D. Moore, M. D., Georgia; Revs. F. Brooks, Ohio; N. W. T. Ross, Maine; F. H. Hanson, Alabama; S. H. Babcock, Massachusetts, and R. S. Mason, of North Carolina. The committee recommended the adoption of suitable resolutions on the above.

Dr. Seduick offered a resolution for a secret session yesterday until five P. M., when debate should close, and that the Convention sit in open session to-day and the vote on Dr. Seymour's case be taken in such open session at noon. This, however, was voted down.

BISHOP CUMMINS' SECESSION LEGISLATED ON.

The House of Bishops sent four messages to the House of Deputies—one concurring in their action in the appointment of a missionary committee; another concurring in the election of Dr. Welles to the bishopric of Wisconsin, and requesting the presiding Bishop to take order for his consecration; a third amending the canon 19, so that section 2 shall read as follows:—

That bishops, priests and deacons, in their respective offices and cures, shall be diligent in the inculcation both publicly and in private pastoral teaching for the promotion of Christian holiness of life, by the due maintenance of family worship, the religious training of children in the observance of baptismal vows, and such abstinence from gaming and amusements involving cruelty to the brute creation, theatrical representations, and all vain amusements tending to withdraw the affections from spiritual things, as is required by the apostolic injunction not to be conformed to this world.

The last and most important of these documents is an amendment to canon 9, which makes it substantially a new canon, designed to reach more effectually than the old one such cases as that of Bishop Cummins abandoning the communion of this church. It changes that canon under title 2 so that it shall read as follows:—

If any bishop shall, without availing himself of the provisions of section 2 of canon xiii, title i, abandon the communion of this Church it shall be the duty of the standing committee of the diocese of said bishop to make certificate of the fact to the presiding bishop, together with a statement of the acts or declarations which prove such abandonment, and the presiding bishop shall, with the consent of three bishops next in seniority, then suspend him from the exercise of his office and ministry until such time as the House of Bishops shall consent or refuse to consent to his deposition. Notice shall then be given to said bishop, by the bishop receiving the certificate, that unless he shall within six months make declaration that the facts alleged in such certificate are false, he will be

DEPOSED FROM THE MINISTRY

And if such declaration be not made within six months, as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the presiding bishop to convene the House of Bishops, and if a majority of the whole number of bishops entitled at the time to seats in the House of Bishops shall at such meeting give their consent, the said presiding bishop or the senior bishop present shall proceed to depose from the ministry the bishop so certified as abandoning, and to pronounce and record in the presence of two or more bishops that he has been so deposed; provided, nevertheless, that if the bishop so certified as abandoning shall transmit to the presiding bishop a retraction of the acts or declarations constituting his offence the bishop may at his discretion abstain from any further proceedings.

The vote on Dr. Seymour will be taken this afternoon, and the secret agony will end.

THE REFORMED CHURCH.

Meeting of the Classis of New York.

Yesterday morning the New York Classis of the Reformed Church met in the Collegiate church, corner of Fifth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, and proceeded to business. The Rev. Hasbrouck Dubois preached a sermon on opening, and the Rev. Isaac Riley was chosen Moderator. The minutes of the last semi-annual meeting were read, and the usual committees were appointed. The Committee on Church Extensions reported that there were new churches organized as follows, viz.:—One German church at the corner of avenue B and Fifth street, already numbering about 100 members; also a new church at High Bridge. There was an animated and important discussion in regard to the action of the last General synod in reference to the new liturgy, but beyond this only the usual routine business was transacted, and the members indulged in informal talk. After a recess for lunch the meeting again convened, but nothing warranting particular mention occupied its attention.

Classis of Southern New York.

At ten o'clock yesterday morning the Classis of Southern New York met in the Union Reformed church, Sixth avenue, near Amity street. The churches were well represented and the meeting was opened with a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Wiggins. The Rev. W. T. Enyard succeeded to the chair for the next six months and Dr. Hutton became the Clerk pro tem. Very little occupied the attention of the meeting except routine business, the chief of which was the approval of the acts of the last General Synod. Dr. Alexander R. Thompson and Rev. W. B. Merritt were appointed a committee to make arrangements with a view that the next meeting should be of a more devotional character and comprise the administration of the Lord's Supper. At one o'clock the session closed.

THE LUTHERAN SYNOD.

Yesterday morning the Lutheran Synod, by invitation of Mr. A. F. Ockershausen, of the Staten Island Ferry Company, embarked on board the steamboat Josephine with a large delegation of ladies, and took a trip down the Bay and around the Lightship, to Long Branch. The ladies entertained the reverend gentlemen with a collation during the trip, after which a meeting was called in the upper cabin, which was opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. Van Alstyne, after which there were addresses by the Revs. Drs. Burrell, Price, Felton, Kline, Mayer, C. W. Wiener, J. C. Kricting and A. F. Ockershausen, Dr. Conrad, editor of the Lutheran Observer, and Mr. G. P. Ockershausen. The party debarked at the Battery, at four P. M.

Evening Session.

The Synod closed the annual session last evening at the St. James Lutheran church. After the opening of the meeting with prayer by the Rev. Dr. Swope, the President announced the following appointments for the ensuing year:—On Ordination, Rev. George Neff, of Rhinebeck; on Education, Rev. William Hull, of Hudson; on Foreign Missions, Rev. A. C. Wedekind; on Home Missions, Rev. George U. Wenner.

The Rev. Dr. Hodge, of Albany, was elected Trustee of the Hartwick Seminary, vice Dr. Pohlman.

The Treasurer's report was read and adopted as correct, after which the Committee on Church Extensions reported on the condition of several new churches, and recommending an extra appropriation for the same.

The Committee on Resolutions on the death of the late Henry Newman Pohlman, by Rev. Thomas T. Everett presented a series of resolutions complimentary to the deceased as President of the Synod for twenty-six years, as President of Theology, and President of the General Synod. Speeches were made upon the eminent ability and piety of deceased by Messrs. Strobel, Everett, Wedekend and others.

After a complimentary vote of thanks to the members of the St. James Lutheran church, the Synod adjourned sine die.

ST. LUKE'S HOME.

Yesterday was a gala day at St. Luke's Home for Indigent Christian Females, situated at the corner of Eighty-ninth street and Madison avenue, on the occasion of the twenty-third anniversary of the founding of the institution. The principal officers are—Bishop Potter, President; Vice Presidents, Rev. J. H. Tuttle, D. D., with a Board of Managers, consisting of clergymen and laymen from the principal Protestant Episcopal churches of the city. The proceedings commenced at two o'clock by the singing of the hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," after which followed addresses; then singing took place, in which the principal performers were Mr. J. E. Morawski, Miss Hobbs and Mr. P. D. Gilager, who were all much applauded.

SYNOD OF NEW JERSEY.

The Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey convened in the First Presbyterian church of Camden yesterday afternoon. The attendance of clerical and lay delegates was large. At three o'clock the exercises were opened by prayer, after which the Rev. Dr. J. H. McIlvaine, of Newark, delivered a sermon on "Christian Liberty," from the text, Galatians v., 13—"Brethren, ye have been called unto liberty, only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh."

After the sermon Rev. Dr. McDonald, of the Presbytery of New Brunswick, was elected Moderator, and the Revs. Messrs. Rogers and Davis Clerks of the Synod.

In the evening missionary meetings were held and addresses were delivered by the Rev. Dr. Dixon and others.

The daily sessions will be from nine o'clock A. M. to twelve M., from half-past two to five, and from half-past seven to nine P. M.

END OF AN EXTRADITION CASE.

Lawrence Hackett Sent to State Prison for Seven Years.

The HERALD, some time ago, related the facts in a very curious extradition case—that of Lawrence Hackett, or Newark—the end of which has just been reached. One night last summer Hackett entered the liquor store of Adam Goldfinger, in Warren street, and, while pretending to be desirous of selling some drinks, seized one instrument and dealt Goldfinger a murderous blow, felling him to the floor instantly. The noise alarmed the neighbors and Hackett fled. Goldfinger was picked up and cared for. It was at first supposed that he was mortally wounded, but he soon recovered. Meanwhile Hackett, supposing he had murdered the man, took the first steamer for Ireland, landing in Dublin, where his mother resides quite comfortably off. After him started two Newark detectives. Hackett was caught, brought back and arraigned in Court, when he pleaded guilty to assault and battery with intent to rob. Yesterday he was sentenced to seven years in the State Prison. That he is a bad fellow is generally conceded, but much comment has been excited over the trouble the authorities took and the money spent in the case. Lawrence used to receive $5 per month from his mother.

In the same Court, Court of Special Sessions—John Gallagher, a notorious wife beater and desperado, was sentenced to a year in State Prison also. He tried hard recently to kill his wife, and but for official interference would undoubtedly have succeeded.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

The Stock Market—Prices Still Declining.

GOLD FIRM AT 110 A 110 1-8.

Government and Railroad Bonds Steady.

WALL STREET, TUESDAY, Oct. 20—6 P. M.

The market to-day was without feature, except that losses are recorded on transactions in a majority of active stocks. No special reason, however, can be given for the result. Certain parties are reported to be selling "short" in anticipation of a lower market, but it is unsafe to prejudge the effect of their work. Other parties may be actively engaged in taking all that is offered at the prevailing low figures with a view to future profit. While it is true that certain stocks are weak, it is equally true that those who have controlled them in the past have shown a willingness to purchase. Quietly this process has been going on. Bear and bull are, therefore, maintaining their old antagonistic relationship, and it is not unlikely, as a consequence, that we shall witness considerable fluctuations—first depression, then a corresponding advance coincident with what may be the improving condition of the country. The immediate market does not reward others than those who, standing on the floor of the Stock Exchange, can watch and avail themselves of the fluctuations of an hour; but there is still an opportunity for outside operators who depend on general results and have the patience to wait to acquire decided profits. While the commercial situation is somewhat discouraging, it is not at its worst, and except in such stocks as are positively bad, we may look for a sharp recovery within the next sixty days.

GAINS AND LOSSES.

The gains of the day as compared with last night have been insignificant, only two stocks participating in the improvement. These were:—

GAINS.—Lake Shore ½ per cent and Ohio and Mississippi ⅛ per cent.

LOSSES.—New York Central and Hudson ⅛ per cent; C., C. and I. C., ⅞; Erie, ⅝; Northwestern, ⅜; Pacific Mail, ¼; Panama, ⅞; Rock Island, ⅜; St. Paul, ⅜; Wabash, 2¼; Union Pacific, ⅛.

THE SALES

of principal stocks amounted to 170,000 shares, which are divided as follows:—New York Central and Hudson River, 1,900; Erie, 17,000; Lake Shore, 59,000; Cleveland and Pittsburg, 200; Northwestern, 6,600; Rock Island, 800; Pacific Mail, 8,000; St. Paul, 900; St. Paul preferred, 500; Ohios, 5,400; Western Union, 13,900; Wabash, 18,200; Union Pacific, 25,500; C., C. and I. C., 8,400; Panama, 295.

THE RANGE OF PRICES.

Western Union was comparatively steady, opening at 79⅝, selling at 79¼a79½a79⅝a79¾a79⅝a79⅛. Union Pacific receded from 34⅜ to 33⅞, underwent numerous fluctuations within ⅛ per cent., and closed at 34. Wabash opened at 31⅛ and steadily declined to 29¼. St. Paul opened at 33 and closed at 32⅝. Rock Island went off at the close ⅜ per cent., the first sale being made at 98⅛. Pacific Mail sold at 46⅛a46⅜a46⅛, ending at 46⅛. Ohio and Mississippi opened at 27⅞, improved to 28⅛a 28¼, and finished at 28. Northwestern fell off ⅞ per cent. Lake Shore developed considerable strength, opening at 78⅞, closing at 79½. Harlem was steady at late prices. The same may be said of Hannibal and St. Joseph. Erie advanced from 29⅝ to 30⅛, after which there was a pressure and decline, the last price being 29⅜. C., C. and I. C. declined from 10⅛ to 8⅝, the close being made at 9⅜.

OPENING, HIGHEST AND LOWEST PRICES.

The following table shows the opening, highest and lowest prices of the day:—

	Opening.	Highest.	Lowest.
New York Central	100⅞	101	100⅞

Pacific Mail	46⅛	46⅝	46⅛
Panama	113	113	112⅞

THE MONEY MARKET.

Money in the early part of the day was easy at 2½ a 3 per cent on call loans, but at the close was marked up to 4 per cent. There is no change in the price of paper. Foreign exchange was strong and higher. The rates moved up to 4.85, 4.85½, 4.88½ and 4.89.

PRODUCE EXPORTS.

The total exports of produce from this port for the week ending to-day amounted to $5,552,953, mixed values, which is an increase over last week of $312,667. The exports of produce for the corresponding week of last year were $7,430,526, and for 1872, $6,114,056. The total exports since January 1, this year, are $235,651,962, against $238,002,655 last year and $183,703,156 in 1872. These are largely below those of the same week in 1873 and 1872. Farmers are holding back grain.

GOLD

was firm. The prices of the day were 110 a 110⅛. The rates paid for borrowing were 1-64 and 1-32 per diem and 4, 6 and 7 per cent per annum.

OPERATIONS OF THE GOLD EXCHANGE TO-DAY.

BANK SHARES.

Bank shares sold at 117 for Commerce, 100 for Central National and 97 a 96 for Fourth National. The latest bids are annexed:—American Exchange, 114; Central National, 99½; Chatham, 137; Chemical, 1,500; City, 300; Commerce, 116½; First National, 200; Fourth National, 97; Fulton, 155; Hanover, 100; Irving, 128; Marine, 130; Mechanics, 136; Merchants, 119; Metropolitan, 132; Nassau, 106; New York, 124; New York County, 205; North America, 93; Park, 135; People's, 140; Republic, 101½; St. Nicholas, 106; State of New York, 109.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

London advices state that £47,000 sterling were to-day withdrawn from the Bank of England. A decline in consols and American securities followed, with the exception of Erie, which advanced from 26½ to 27¼. It was locally reported that the Erie Company had succeeded in making a loan of $3,000,000 abroad, but there is no verification of the statement up to a late hour. The five o'clock London quotations are as follows:—Consols for money, 92½ a 92⅝; do. for account, 92⅝ a 92¾; five-twenty bonds of 1865, 105¼; five-twenty bonds of 1867, 109¼; ten-forty bonds, 103¼; new fives, 103¼; Erie Railway shares, 27. Market quiet, but firm.

RAILROAD BONDS.

Central Pacifics advanced to 92⅝. Wabash second mortgage sold at 70, but the broker states that his principal was forced to make the transaction in order to obtain money. The transaction shows a decline of 2½ or 3 per cent, but is not a criterion. The total business of the day amounted to less than $50,000. C., C. and I. C. was weak and sold at 70½ for first and 25⅛ a 25½ for second mortgage. The cause of weakness in C., C. and I. C. is said to be due to the reception of a telegraph despatch, stating that the attorneys of the bondholders of the second morgage on the road have instituted suit for a foreclosure of the second mortgage bond in the United States District Court at Cincinnati. It is understood that this action is taken or suggested by the direction of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which is known to be a large holder of this class of bonds.

GOVERNMENT BONDS.

These were firm, but without animation. Registered fives of 1881 sold at 111⅛ and do. ten-forties at 111⅞. The following were the closing prices:—United States five-twenties, 1881, registered, 117¾ a 118; do. sixes, 1881, coupons, 118½ a 118¾; do. five-twenties, 1862, registered, 109½ a 110; do. do., coupons, 113 a 113½; do. do., 1864, coupons, 116 a 116⅛; do. do., 1865, coupons, 117 a 117⅜; do., do., 1865, coupons, new, 116⅜ a 116⅞; do., do., 1867, coupons, 117⅝ a 117⅞; do., do., 1868, coupons, 117⅜ a 117⅝; do. ten-forties, registered, 111⅞ a 112⅛; do. do., coupons, 112⅛ a 112½; do. fives, 1881, coupons, 112⅛ a 112⅜; do. currency Pacifics, 117⅞ a 118⅛.

SOUTHERN BONDS

were dull and steady. Missouris sold at 94½ for long bonds, and 93 for funded bonds. Tennessees, old and new, were bid for at 67; do., old and new ex.coupon, being quoted at 52 to 55, new series at 53 to 55, and Virginia consols at 52½ to 53¼; Virginia old and new were bid for at 33, with none offered; North Carolina old was quoted at 21 to 24, and do. April and October at 20½ to 21½. The afternoon dealers were confined to Missouri funded bonds at 92⅞, and South Carolina new, January and July, at 16.

THE UNITED STATES TREASURY.

The Treasury balances are as follows:—Currency, $14,150,441; special deposits of legal tenders for the redemption of certificates of deposit, $58,489,000; coin, $79,897,086; including coin certificates, $23,796,900; outstanding legal tenders, $382,000,000. The Assistant Treasurer paid out $20,000 in coin interest and redeemed $9,000 in called bonds. The Customs receipts were $301,000. The internal revenue receipts were $124,578.

COMMERCIAL REPORT.

Cotton Weak—Flour Generally Dull—Wheat Nominal—Corn Dull—Oats, Pork and Lard Dull—Sugar Firm—Coffee Strong—Petroleum Quiet and Weak—Rosin Quiet—Spirits Turpentine Steady—Metals Dull—Wool Quiet—Freights Firm—Whiskey Steady.

TUESDAY, Oct. 20—6 P. M.

The markets were dull and irregular as a general thing, while prices were in numerous instances lower. On 'Change flour was quiet and weak, saving only shipping extras. Wheat was dull and lower for some kinds and nominal for others. Corn was inactive and heavy. Oats were active and firmer. Pork was dull, lower and nominal. Lard was weak. Freights were firm. Whiskey steady. Wool ruled quiet. The demand for spot cotton was generally at lower prices; "futures" declined ⅛c. The grocery market was generally fairly active, with holders firm. Naval stores and petroleum were rather quiet, without essential change in figures. Metals were inactive and nominally unchanged.

ASHES.—Receipts for the past three days 48 packages. The market has shown no change since our last. The demand has been light with pots quoted steady at 6½c. per lb. and pearls at 9c. per lb.

BUILDING MATERIALS.—We have no change to note in the market for brick. The demand has been good at a steady range of prices. We append former quotations as follows:—For pale, $2 50 and $2 75 afloat and $4 50 a $4 75 delivered; Jersey, $5 afloat and $7 delivered; up river, $5 25 a $5 75 afloat and $7 25 a $7 75 delivered; Haverstraw Bay, $6 a $7 75 afloat and $8 a $9 75 delivered. Fronts as follows:—Croton—Brown, $12 afloat and $15 delivered; dark, $13 afloat and $16 delivered; red, $14 afloat and $17 delivered; Philadelphia, $28 a $32 afloat and $30 a $34 delivered; Baltimore, $50 a $58 afloat. Cement met with a fair demand and sold at steady prices, quoted as follows:—Rosendale $1 20 per barrel; Portland and Roman $4 25 a $4 50. Lime was unchanged in value and sold quite liberally at from $1 10 a $1 35 for Rockland common, and $1 60 a $1 85 for do. lump. Laths met with a moderate demand and ruled steady in value at $1 60 for Eastern spruce.

BROOM CORN.—The inquiry appeared to be a trifle better during the past few days and values were without noticeable change. We quote:—9c. a 10c. for new green hurl, 5c. a 6c. for new and old mixed, 10c. a 11c. for short green bush and 6c. for red tipped.

BEESWAX.—We have yet to notice a quiet market, with transactions only in a small way; quoted steady at from 30c. a 32c. for yellow Western and Southern.

BEANS AND PEAS.—Mediums were in moderate request, but scarcely so firm. Marrows were in good demand and firm. Most descriptions of peas were in demand and steady. We quote:—Medium, new, choice, $1 90 a $2; medium, fair to good, $1 50 a $1 65; marrows, new, choice, $2 50 a $2 55; marrows, old, choice, $2 20 a $2 25; pea, new, $2 15 a $2 20; red kidney, prime, new, $3; green peas, new, $1 75 a $1 80; white kidney, choice, $2 40 a $2 50; white kidney, fair to good, $2 a $2 25.

BUTTER.—Receipts for six days, 29,548 packages, including 4,938 packages to-day. The market rules quiet, and, while no material concessions are made in prices, the tendency of values is unmistakably in buyer's favor under free offerings to sell. We quote:—State dairies, firkins and tubs, fine, 39c. a 40c. per lb.; do., do., good to prime, 36c. a 37c.; do., do., fair to good, 33c. a 35c.; firkins, choice, selected, 39c. a 40c.; do., good to prime, 35c. a 37c.; do., common to fair, 28c. a 32c.; half firkin tubs, choice, selected, 42c.; do., good to prime, 37c. a 40c.; do., common to fair, 28c. a 32c.; Welsh tubs, choice, fall made, 40c. a 42c.; prime, 37c. a 38c.; do., good, 35c. a 36c.; do., common to fair, 28c. a 32c.; pails, creamery, fine, 45c.; do., dairy, fine, 42c. a 44c.; do., do., fair to good, 38c. a 40c.; do., do., common to fair, 30c. a 37c.; Western creamery, choice, 38c. a 40c.; do., do., fair to good, 34c. a 37c.; Western Reserve and Michigan, tubs, choice dairy packed, 36c.; do., do., good to prime, 32c. a 33c.; do., do., fair to good, 25c. a 30c.; do., firkins, choice, 32c. a 33c.; do., do., fair to good, 26c. a 30c.; Northern Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa, tubs, choice, 34c. a 35c.; do., do., fair to good, 25c. a 30c.; do., firkins, good to prime, 30c. a 32c.; do., do., fair to good, 24c. a 28c.; Central Ohio and Indiana, firkins, choice, 28c. a 30c.; do., do., fair to good, 21c. a 26c.; do., tubs, choice, 29c. a 30c.; do., do., fair to good, 24c. a 27c.; various styles, common, 21c. a 23c.

CHEESE.—Receipts for the week 53,940 boxes, including 13,314 boxes to-day. The market, without material change in prices, is less active and holders are rather more disposed to sell. We quote:—State factory, fine to fancy, 15½c. a 16¼c.; good to fine, 14c. a 15½c.; State factory, fair to good, 13½c. a 15c.; do. dairies, fine, 14c. a 15½c.; Orange county skims, 8c. a 12c.; Ohio factory, Cheddar shape, choice, for [illegible]

[illegible]

The transactions include 200 cases of sundry kinds, at from 7c. a 50c. per lb.; 180 cases of Connecticut, crop '73, 6½c. a 18c. per lb.; 193 do. of State, crop '73, at 7½c. a 11½c.; 3,183 do. of Ohio, crop '73, at 11c. a 12½c., including 145 cases of wrappers, on private terms; 298 cases of Wisconsin, crop '73, at 10c. per lb. The demand for Kentucky continued active, and the market ruled very firm. We note further sales of 2,000 hhds. at 10c. a 25c. per lb. Foreign was steady, and sold to the extent of 200 bales of Havana at 75c. a $1 per lb.

TALLOW was firm, with sales of 20 hhds. of prime city at 8⅞c., and 100,000 tierces of out of time stock at 8⅝c. a 8 3-16c.

VEGETABLES.—The only change of consequence to note was a scarcity of red onions, which were very firmly held, some holders asking as high as $3 per bbl. Other vegetables without material change. We quote:—Southern white onions, per bbl., $3; do. yellow do., per bbl. $2 50; red do., per bbl., $2 50; new beets, per 100, $2 a $2 50; white turnips, per bbl., $1 a 1 25; Russia do., per bbl., $1 50 a $2; cabbage, new, per 100, $4 a $6; do. red, per 100, $4 a $6; Lima beans, per bag, $1 50 a $2; yellow squash, per bbl., $1; marrow do., per bbl., $1; lettuce, Long Island, per 100, $1 a $1 50; green peas, do., per bag, $2 50; green corn, per 100, $1 25 a $1 75; string beans, Long Island, per bag, $1 a $1 25; cauliflower, per dozen, $1 a $3; Long Island tomatoes, per basket, 50c. a 60c.; egg plant, per dozen, 37c. a 50c.; celery, per dozen, $1 a $1 25.

WOOL.—The market is devoid of life, but prices remain stationary. The sales are 5,000 lbs. tubwashed at 58c.; 5,000 lbs. free fall California, 26c.; 5,000 lbs. scoured do., 72c. a 73½c.; and 10,000 lbs. TRIPLE SHEET.

New York, Wednesday, Oct. 21, 1874.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

Owing to the great pressure on our advertising columns, advertisers would favor us by sending in their advertisements early in the day. This course will secure a proper classification, helping the public and the HERALD. Advertisements intended for our Sunday issue may be sent with great advantage in the earlier days of the week; it will prevent confusion and mistakes arising from the immense quantity of work to be done on Saturdays. Advertisements will be received daily at this office, the branch office, No. 1,265 Broadway, between Thirty-first and Thirty-second streets, and the Brooklyn branch office, corner of Fulton and Boerum streets, up to nine P. M., and at the Harlem branch office, 124th street and Third avenue, up to half-past seven P. M. Let advertisers remember that the earlier their advertisements are in the HERALD office the better for themselves and for us.

From our reports this morning the probabilities are that the weather to-day will be clear or partly cloudy.

WALL STREET YESTERDAY.—Stocks were weak and the market without feature. Money was a trifle stronger at the close. Gold was steady at 110 a 110¼.

A CONVENTION of delegates from a number of Western States met in Louisville yesterday to consider the best way to have the national capital removed to the Mississippi Valley. The great cost of the Capitol buildings, imperfect as they are, will keep Congress and the Executive in Washington for years to come.

THE TRIAL of the alleged conspirators in the safe burglary case in Washington was begun yesterday, notwithstanding the efforts to obtain a postponement on the ground that important witnesses for the defence were absent. The government appears to be confident of success and indisposed to allow any more trifling.

THE NEWS from Louisiana is to the effect that because the federal authorities have arrested certain persons charged with murder it is proposed to have another revolution, and that there is to be a meeting and more white leagues. If there is any more of this madness the democrats will be again defeated in the North and reconstruction postponed. There is one ghost that never can be summoned again in the South with impunity—the ghost of rebellion.

A HERALD PROPHECY.—On July 5, 1873, the HERALD, in the first article on Cæsarism, in opening the discussion of the subject, said:—"The attributes of the Presidential office, its prerogatives and possibilities, its ever-increasing power and splendor, the yearning of a cultivated and wealthy class for court honors and the attractions of a court life, the desire of those in office to retain power and reward, the question, in fact, whether a strong Executive does not weaken the Republic, must in time become the most important in our politics." "If this question of Cæsarism continues to assume a menacing aspect we shall have an issue more difficult to decide and more essential in its proper determination to the national liberties than any that has gone before." Does not the question seem to have assumed a menacing aspect?

Governor Dix and the Third Term.

It is stated that Governor Dix, in reply to a serenade to be given him some evening this week, will speak of the third term project in language of strong reprobation. We incline to regard this statement as apocryphal. In the first place, the friends of the Governor and the republican press of the State are not agreed as to the expediency of such a step. The Times, which advocated it for three or four days, began to fall back on Monday and yesterday dropped the subject. The other leading journals of that party have steadily deprecated it, and with the opinions of his supporters so divided the Governor will naturally hesitate lest he should expose himself to a charge of weakening his canvass by a hazardous change of front in the face of the enemy. In the next place, all the reasons which have restrained him from making such a declaration at a more suitable time exist in full force now. If he has been held back by fear of offending the President and alienating the Custom House there is no reason why that motive should not operate with as much strength now as heretofore. His chances have grown so doubtful that these people would have no difficulty in punishing him, whereas, had he made such a declaration two weeks ago, it would have brought him such an increase of popularity that he might have safely defied them. A tardy declaration against the third term in the present condition of his canvass would be so evidently extorted by alarm that a successful handle would be made of it by the democrats as a signal of distress or an act of desperation. As he did not venture on the experiment at a time when no member of his party would have dared to complain we shall be surprised if he does it now, at the risk of loosening all the tongues in the Custom House and exciting the regret of many sincere supporters. Still another reason for distrusting this reported intention of a serenade to furnish the occasion for an anti-third-term speech appears in the attitude of the Albany Evening Journal. Governor Dix's relations with that paper are intimate and confidential, and if he had such an intention as is ascribed to him he would have given a hint of it to the party organ at the State capital and saved it from the awkwardness of opposing in advance what it would feel bound to justify as soon as it was done.

To be sure, there is a finessing kind of speech which Governor Dix might make without embroiling himself with the Custom House; but he should speak boldly if at all. If he were merely to proclaim his disbelief; if he were to brand the third term fears as idle and causeless; if he undertook to clear General Grant of cherishing such aspirations and to offer this as the justification of his previous silence, the public would be entitled to demand the grounds of his opinion. The public would inquire how he became so much better informed on this subject than Grant's cronies and familiars. It is not believed that the President has made Governor Dix a confidant or has communicated with him on the third term question at all. Governor Dix has no other means of information than the country at large. His asserted disbelief would go for nothing unless he supported it by evidence. The only evidence on which General Grant can be acquitted is a public declaration by himself so absolute and unequivocal as to bind his personal honor and make it a breach of sincerity and an act of perfidy to permit the use of his name for another nomination. Of course Governor Dix has not this kind of proof to offer. His professions of disbelief would, therefore, be a trifling with the public patience if not an insult to the public intelligence. Such a speech would have satisfied nobody, even if it had been made close on the heels of the Utica Convention. What he ought to have said then, and should say now, if he makes a speech on the subject, is evident enough. It should be nothing less than an explicit declaration of his immovable hostility to a third term and of his conviction that it would be the knell of our free institutions. Had he intrepidly said this within ten days of his recent nomination its effect on public feeling would have been magical and electric. The universal, enthusiastic plaudits with which it would have been greeted would have turned the popular tide so strongly in Governor Dix's favor that nothing could have reversed it. It would have established confidence in him as a statesman of remarkable sagacity, patriotism, independence and political courage. But it would be no proof of courage, sagacity or independence to make the declaration now. The public would think he had been scared by his fears into an act which he failed to do from wise and forecasting free will. Even his sincerity would be open to question, whereas nobody could have doubted it if General Dix's sagacity had not got so unfortunately belated.

This third term question has a deeper significance than those of our contemporaries who at first scouted and have since echoed our warnings seem to perceive. It is not, as the HERALD understands it, a mere question of General Grant's personal ambition. It goes far deeper. The main element of danger, to a philosophical view, lies in the conjuncture of circumstances by which such ambition is inspired; the safety and stability of our institutions depend on the absence or removal of this class of temptations. There is no country in the world where ambition will not leap into the saddle if the horse stands before it ready and caparisoned. In raising the third term alarm we simply gave General Grant credit for sagacity enough to perceive the possibilities of a situation which, though dangerous to the country, might be of personal advantage to him. The great Athenian orator, in reproving the thoughtless levity of his fellow citizens, told them that the sensational reports they were fond of circulating, that Philip was dead, would be of no consequence even if they were true, because their want of patriotic vigilance would raise up a new Philip if the ambitious King of Macedon should die. In like manner the condition of our country tends to awaken such aspirations as General Grant has been led to entertain. It is not so much his fault as that of the policy of his party—a policy which inevitably tends to imperialism unless checked and corrected. The negro supremacy in the South, introduced by the hasty, ill-considered reconstruction measures, creates a constant necessity for federal interference to preserve the peace and uphold civil order; and when local tranquillity is made permanently dependent on central authority the substance of imperialism is established. The horse is saddled and bridled and only awaits a rider. General Grant is the first President who has encountered this seductive temptation, and it is hardly in human nature that his political virtue should not have been shaken if he had penetration enough to perceive so great an opportunity. His aspirations are so new, and therefore give so violent a shock to traditional feeling, that his foot is pretty sure to be struck out of the stirrup; but the danger will nevertheless remain unless the HERALD'S remedy of a constitutional convention to readjust the relations of the federal government to the States shall be accepted. The third term aspirations of President Grant are only a symptom of a deep-seated disease, for which there is no other remedy than a national convention. The defeat of the republican party in the recent elections proves that the political sentiment of the country is, as yet, sound to the core. But the country must not delude itself with the idea that merely to shove General Grant out of the field puts an end to the danger. We shall have a new crop of Grants unless a national convention shall remove the soil in which they take root.

The fault we are compelled to find with Governor Dix is that he seems to regard the third term question as a mere transient phase of our politics, having reference only to the individual man who happens at this time to be President. Grant is a mere bubble on the surface of politics; the real danger is in the state of things which encourages the hopes of every accidental pretender who gains possession of the Executive office. The only security for the country is in nipping such pretensions in the bud, and Governor Dix has failed in a great duty by his neglect to warn and instruct the country in a crisis which would have made his voice potential. His election is a very small matter in comparison with the good he might have done; but he could have secured his election had he spoken out on this subject at a time when no citizen could have doubted that his convictions and not his fears prompted him to raise a voice of warning and send it far and wide through the land.

New Jersey Politics.

As far as it is possible to judge from the indications usually accepted as premonitory New Jersey will be carried by the democrats in November. The vote of Essex county (including the city of Newark) bears the same relation to that of the State that the vote of Pennsylvania has hitherto been believed to hold toward Presidential elections. The recent charter election held in Newark showed a large democratic gain, and though the republican newspapers would fain produce the conviction that this result was wholly due to local causes the fact will not be without effect in the State. A severer blow at the republican prospects was unconsciously struck by the recent Republican Convention at Newark, called for the purpose of nominating county officers, including a Sheriff and Register. Both these offices are lucrative, and it was in the power and to the best interests of the Convention to give them to good and powerful men, who would assure success in the county and strengthen the ticket in the State. Failing to appreciate the urgency of such a course, the Convention adjourned after making nominations that, though not essentially unpopular in themselves, will incline to divorce powerful influences from the republican cause, materially weakening the support of Mr. Halsey in his own city and county.

A HERALD PROPHECY.—On July 7, 1873, the HERALD, in the second article on Cæsarism, said, in advice to the republican party:—"We can name twenty Marc Antonys in our city who would carry the crown of a third nomination to President Grant with pride and swiftness. We must meet Cæsarism now, not by postponing this question out of deference to the feelings of General Grant, but by meeting it, discussing it and searching out public opinion. If our public men have no views upon the subject or are silent and non-committal we must educate them now." If this admonition had been heard at the time the republicans might not now be in their condition of extreme anxiety and despair."

THE VIRGINIUS CLAIMS.—We are informed, through our Washington correspondence, that the interchange of diplomatic notes between the United States and Spain on these Virginius claims continues, but with no prospect of a settlement, and that it is probable that the subject will be submitted to arbitration, according to the terms of the Fish-Polo protocol. The question recurs, Why continue this correspondence when there is no hope of reaching a settlement by this process? Why not proceed to the arbitration provided for as a last resort? England puts in her demand, and the money is paid; but why should Mr. Fish attempt to follow the example of England when he is barred in the outset by his protocol for arbitration? He is only wasting time and showing his hand in his letters for the information of Serrano.

THE ARGENTINE INSURRECTION appears to be getting stronger, broader and bolder from day to day. But the issues involved do not as yet appear to be anything more than those of most of the South American revolutions of the last fifty years. In short, this appears to be only an armed conflict between the party in power and an outside party for the public plunder, and so, whatever the result, it will, to the outside world, be all the same.

A HERALD PROPHECY.—On July 8, 1873, the HERALD, in the third article on the subject of Cæsarism, said:—"The men of whom Mr. Colfax may be regarded as the most prominent example, the Prætorian guards of the republican party, have made Cæsarism possible in our time, and have compelled us to open an issue with the people which has not had its parallel in gravity since the foundation of the government." "A declaration from General Grant now that he would not be a candidate for re-election would be an act of magnanimity on his part." If the President had made such a declaration at that time Centennial Dix would not now be so anxious to address a band of music in opposition to a third term.

ST. DOMINGO has succeeded in obtaining a treaty of recognition, peace, amity, commerce, navigation and extradition with Spain, and is consequently happy.

Too Late.

The republican party would seem to be in the position of the French army at the battle of Waterloo after the arrival of the Prussians. The compact, fighting array that seemed strong enough to save France suddenly yielded to a panic. The cry of despair arose in the ranks; the soldiers rushed here and there, striving for safety, but only to be captured or sabred by the allied horsemen. Only yesterday and the republican party seemed defiant and irresistible. It claimed to rule the country, dictate the measures of reconstruction and compel the acquiescence of the people in a violation of the spirit of the constitution simply to serve the ambition of General Grant. The democrats were despised as "copperheads" or rebels. The statesmen in power seemed anxious only to gain wealth. General Grant swept away all the traditions of the Executive office, and used it, as he did the chief command of an army, as a simple military post, with the office-holders as an army, the Cabinet as his staff, all bent to the execution of his will. Notwithstanding these changes and violations of the constitution; notwithstanding the misery that came upon the South, making reconstruction a disgrace and a crime; notwithstanding subsidy schemes and wild financial experiments, and blunders that under other circumstances would have brought shame and confusion upon any party, the leaders, arrogant with war victories and war powers, continued on and on, and believed they had only to go to the polls to win a victory.

When the HERALD, eighteen months ago, pointed out the tendency of these phenomena, and argued with a logic which, whether sound or unsound, has never yet been answered, that the inevitable result would be an agitation for a third term, there were only ridicule and mockery. Eloquent orators valiantly defended Grant from any tendency to Cæsarism. Mr. Nast recalled the genius of Hogarth in a series of caricatures of the "new sensation." The HERALD was held up to scorn. The President would not speak. Somehow the subject was "beneath" him, although it had not been beneath Washington, Jefferson or Jackson. He would not speak, nor his friends for him. In time the HERALD showed from incontestable evidence that a majority of Senators and Representatives were prepared to accept if not willing to welcome the third term. This revelation came upon the country, and the answer was promptly returned by Indiana and Ohio.

Suddenly all was changed. Silent men found speech. Pig Iron Kelley, who was a trimmer while conversing with our correspondent, found a voice, and in tones of thunder denounced a third term. Robeson made an occasion for a speech, and, although he said little, it was thought to be enough for New Jersey. Belknap found some one in a railway car to report him as mildly deprecating the discussion. Keen and wise Henry Wilson feared the "burden" would overload the party, and events have shown how wisely he reasoned. And Centennial Dix is said to be waiting for a band of music to enable him to issue another order to "shoot on the spot" the Cæsarism sensation. But it is too late—too late! It will never do. Silence was crime; speech now would be cowardice. When the HERALD spoke it was deemed to be the warning of Cassandra. Our admonitions were despised even as the admonitions of Cassandra. Now every one is only too eager to listen. But it is too late! The republican party must carry this burden to the end, and it is a burden that bids fair to drag it to dishonor and defeat.

THE GRANT-HONORE WEDDING.—We present to our readers to-day a detailed description of the nuptials of Colonel Frederick Dent Grant and Miss Ida Marie Honoré, which were celebrated in Chicago yesterday and which constituted the social event of the season in the Lake City. Fashionable weddings, especially when the family of the Chief Magistrate of the nation is interested, never fail to attract universal attention. The toilets on the present occasion were exceedingly handsome and presented features of novelty that will be readily appreciated by our modistes. The ceremony of marriage according to the Campbellite ritual was very solemn and impressive. The President and Mrs. Grant and some of the most distinguished personages in the country honored the event with their presence. It will be something for Chicago circles to gossip over for a month to come.

A HERALD PROPHECY.—On July 9, 1873, the HERALD, in the fourth article on the subject of Cæsarism, said:—"It is, moreover, a painful and extraordinary fact that while every politician in America is thinking over the problem whether General Grant will or will not be a candidate for re-election no leading republican has dared to say that such a candidacy would be practically an avowal of the failure of republican institutions." "We contend that all sentimental issues in our politics should be postponed until we have decided the fundamental questions." Vice President Wilson evidently thinks so when he fears that the issue thus earnestly presented to the republican party eighteen months ago now threatens to destroy it.

GERMANY ON AN INTERNATIONAL MARITIME CODE.—It is reported that Germany has definitely proposed to the great Powers the adoption of a general international maritime code. And why not, when Germany is aiming to be a great Power on the sea as well as on the land. She seems to be casting about in both hemispheres for such unappropriated or purchasable islands as may be useful as naval depots or stations. She evidently means, henceforward, to secure a portion of that commercial and naval power which is the strength of England at home and abroad; and why, then, should not Germany move for a hearing in the establishment of a general maritime code? Bismarck evidently holds that his mission in the reconstruction of the German Empire is not limited to the European Continent.

THE CUBAN INSURRECTION still keeps the Spanish authorities on the alert. Incendiarism will be punished with severity, according to the latest orders, and a slight skirmish in a cattle farm constitutes the news from the field. A proclamation of amnesty to insurgents who will lay down their arms before Christmas is in contemplation.

The Reform Movement.

The revolt against Tammany Hall came to a head last evening by a mass meeting at the Cooper Institute. The large and enthusiastic character of the assemblage shows the existence of those electric elements which, under proper management and with really representative merchants and citizens enlisted, could have been fused into a thunderbolt for the destruction of Tammany Hall. There was probably never a time when the spirit of dissatisfaction was so rife. Men of all classes see that under the arrangement proposed by Kelly and Morrissey we pass from one ring to another; that it is only Tweedism in a different form; that we shall have in time the worst features of the old Ring. In the pungent and forcible speech of Mr. Creamer these points were presented, and we have assurances that, if elected, the new candidates will really be reformers. This is a good deal, especially if we could see any hope of their election. Reform has never been more injured than by the accession of bastard reformers to office. We have always felt that if genuine reformers ever gained power New York might become a city worthy to be the emporium of America. We should be glad to see the candidates nominated last evening under trial, for reform is a business that we think should be tried again and again until we learn whether it is possible ever to have honest men in office.

The nominations of the Cooper Institute meeting are certainly unexceptionable and in every way an improvement upon the Tammany candidates. For Mayor we have Oswald Ottendorfer, the editor of the leading German paper of the country. The nomination of Mr. Ottendorfer is a double compliment to the German classes, of which he is an honored representative, and to journalism, of which he is an honored member. We do not know whether he will accept the rule observed by Mr. Dana and Mr. Marble, and now, as it were, a canon in journalism, to the effect that no editor should accept office. If he feels that his duty leads him to accept, his candidacy will have an important effect upon the German vote. For Register we have General Patrick H. Jones, a republican. General Jones is an Irishman, and was appointed Postmaster of New York by General Grant at the request of Horace Greeley. When the lamented Halpine, better known as "Miles O'Reilly," died the incumbent of this very office of Register, General Jones was appointed to succeed him by Governor Fenton. He held the office, performed the duties and turned over all the receipts to the family of Halpine. The sum thus accruing was enough to preserve the family in comfortable circumstances. It seems almost poetic justice that the General should now be nominated for the office he once held for the sake of a dead friend, and it will require some effort for Jimmy Hayes to defeat a man who has such a claim to the sympathies of Irishmen as General Jones earned by his treatment of the family of "Miles O'Reilly." The reform ticket, therefore, goes to the people with candidates especially strong with the Irish and the Germans.

We are afraid, however, it is too late. It is very hard to open a reform canvass at the eleventh hour. All the organization is with Tammany. The republicans are apathetic. No one knows whether they will indorse Ottendorfer. Although General Jones is a republican it is quite uncertain whether he will be altogether welcome to the Custom House. We understand that Mr. Royal Phelps would have taken the nomination for the Mayoralty had the republicans agreed to support him. But the leaders of that party have held off, and there is a fear even now that they will sell out for aid in the Assembly nominations. If the republicans were serious in their desires for municipal reform and would go honestly to work they could do a great deal towards the success of the Cooper Institute ticket. But it seems to be too late to make any headway against the Kelly-Morrissey Ring. The movement, however, has our best wishes for its success. In a day or two we can see what Mr. Creamer and his allies will do.

A HERALD PROPHECY.—On July 10, 1873, the HERALD, in the fifth article on the subject of Cæsarism, said:—"It is not too late. General Grant has an unrivalled opportunity, while at the same time he is menaced with a fascinating, terrible danger. Let him throw aside the temptations to Cæsarism that now pervade the republican party. Let him show that power has not taught him ambition, which we are told is the last infirmity of noble minds, and in giving us a generous policy build a monument more enduring than the Column Vendôme, a monument that posterity will honor and not strive to root out and destroy." It was not too late in 1873. But it is too late now.

Pennsylvania Senators.

As the coming election in Pennsylvania involves the question of change in her representation in the United States Senate it may not be amiss to say a word (if our friends of both parties please to make it so) of warning—a word as to the past and the present. It seems to be taken for granted that the actual republican Senator, Mr. John Scott, is to be displaced, either through selfish intrigue in his own party or the success of his accredited antagonists. It is difficult to understand why republicans should desert Mr. Scott, in view of his fidelity to the party, chiefly attested by his activity in getting up the Ku Klux phantasmagoria; but so it is. Democrats had no reason to blush for their State as represented by a man of talent and education like Mr. Scott. Still his doom we fear, is heralded, and, unless the Camero faction should suddenly change, their plans will be relentlessly executed. As it ever occurred to the historical student to think of the long reign of intellectual mediocrity which in this matter of the choice of Senators in Pennsylvania has continued unbroken? It is perfectly lamentable. If first choice in the freshness of her constitutional relation was a rich merchant of Philadelphia, William Bingham, who as a politician had no prominence, and whose chief distinction is that he was the father-in-law of another merchant, Mr. Baring, who became an English peer. Mr. Gallatin was for one year a Senator, and Robert Morris, then more occupied by land speculations than statesmanship, was Senator for a full term from 1789 to 1795. James Ross, the last of the federalists, elected in 1794, was an able man. Then began the unbroken reign of mediocrity—Bayley, Gregg, Smilie and Findley and Roberts and Laycock and Marks and McKean (not the Governor, who was a man of mark) and Sturgeon. It brightened a little with the two brothers-in-law, Wilkins and Dallas, the latter cleverly called, from his deportment, "the pageant of democracy;" but neither amounted to much. The only trained and really able man who held his own at a time when there were "giants in the land," and served two terms, was Mr. Buchanan. All else is sad to think of. When republicanism became triumphant, by a sort of accident a singularly able and accomplished man—Edgar Cowan, of Westmoreland—was chosen, and his career in the wretched perplexities and involutions of Andrew Johnsonism ended in most undeserved discredit, he seeking a retirement from which no influence seems able to draw him. All the while Cameron held his seat and is there yet. An accidental democratic success sent a scholar and statesman to the Senate in Mr. Buckalew, and he, in turn is sacrificed to Scott moriturus. We have collated these dreary memories of Pennsylvania's past in the faint hope (and we speak to both parties) she may do better in the future.

THE RIGHTS OF RAILWAY PASSENGERS.—A number of indignant railway passengers of Paterson, N. J., have brought suit against a railway company for heavy damages for expulsion from a train on refusing to pay fare for the time they were compelled to stand in the car. They acted upon the rule of "no seat no fare," and upon this issue we hope the judgment of the Court will establish this rule as the law in Jersey; for then we may hope that this same rule will some day be declared the law in New York, even for our overcrowded and suffocating street cars. Upon this point all good citizens will go with Mr. Bergh in the "prevention of cruelty to animals."

MR. DOCKRAY has written home from Spain that he is ignorant of what his fate is to be, but that Mr. Cushing has sent him an encouraging telegram. He should not be too exacting. Our government moves with grave deliberation, as it did in the Virginius case, and Mr. Dockray must not forget that he is an American and not a British citizen.

A HERALD PROPHECY.—On July 11, 1873, the HERALD, in the sixth article on Cæsarism, said:—"So with the other members of the Cabinet. They are nothing to us but as men who labor in the vineyard as best they may, only to pass away when the sun goes down and be followed by new laborers to-morrow. So long as they work well and avoid the constable we do not see that they concern us in any way whatever. The question whether we are to have Cæsarism or republicanism does concern us, as it does our children. In that contest we are enlisted, and we shall serve to the end of the war." It would seem now that this war is at an end.

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

Collector W. A. Simmons, of Boston, is at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

Father Hyacinthe's new book will be entitled "Catholic Reform."

Ex-Congressman James M. Ashley, of Ohio, has quarters at the Astor House.

Ex-Governor William Bigler, of Pennsylvania, has arrived at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

President Andrew D. White, of Cornell University, is staying at the Hoffman House.

General Henry Brewerton, United States Army, is quartered at the Sturtevant House.

Bishop John Sharp, of Salt Lake City, has taken up his residence at the St. Nicholas Hotel.

State Senator Henry C. Connelly, of Kingston, N. Y., is stopping at the Metropolitan Hotel.

Congressman C. L. Merriam, of Locust Grove, N. Y., is registered at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

Professor Masson has written a book on "The Three Devils: Luther's, Milton's, and Goethe's."

Mr. Mahlon Chance, United States Consul at Nassau, is sojourning at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

General George S. Batcheller, of Saratoga, is among the latest arrivals at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

The Henry Wilson who was "stabbed with a razor" in Boston the other night was not the Vice President.

Ex-Governor John T. Hoffman arrived in this city yesterday from Albany, and is at the Clarendon Hotel.

Messrs. George W. Childs and A. J. Drexel, of Philadelphia, have apartments at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

Count B. Tyszkiewicz, of Russia, who arrived from Europe in the steamship Parthia, is at the Windsor Hotel.

Franz Keller's "Amazon and Madeira Rivers, from the Note Book of an Explorer," is in the press of Chapman & Hall.

The Rev. Mr. Marks built an English church in Burmah, and His Majesty the King of Burmah has sued Marks for the value of the timber.

Senator William McMaster, of Toronto, and Mr. L. S. Huntington, of Montreal, members of the Canadian Parliament, are at the New York Hotel.

Professor Corssen has at last published the first volume (containing more than a thousand pages) of his great work on "The Language of the Etruscans."

There is no truth in the cable report of the assassination of Mr. Buckland, an American newspaper correspondent, and Mr. Jerrard, representative of the English Carlist Committee, by the Spaniards.

The Western papers say that Miss Mattie Woodson, of Vicksburg, who is a great farmer and has planted her own crop of cotton, "deserves a statue." It should be one of a kind that wears boots.

The London Athenæum wants to know why, in the devil's name, Scribner's catalogue of books relating to the devil contains Dante's "Divina Commedia," Milton's "Paradise Lost," and Shaftesbury's "Characteristics."

It is reported from Chattanooga that Powell Clayton said to a fellow delegate to the rogues' convention, "Our only hope is in bayonets. We must have bayonets in the South before the elections or we are ruined. What we must work for is bayonets—bayonets!"

A New York correspondent of the Chicago Times, in an elaborate article attacking the style of writing indulged in by the newspaper reporters of this city, remarks:—"Men capable of writing nice English cannot be had cheaply." With such an example before us, we should say not.

Autobiographies are among the most fascinating productions of literature. We are soon to have Macready's "Autobiographical Reminiscences," William Godwin's autobiography, in two volumes, and the autobiography of Dr. A. B. Granville, a noted London physician, and author of numerous books on the spas of England and the Continent.

Atrocious misgovernment and flagrant violations of plain law such as Grant and his Attorney General persist in are not in themselves reasons for despairing of popular government; but if the party that put these men in power could still receive the support of the people at the polls, despite such misdoings, the case might then be bad for government by the people.

Figaro criticises an ancient custom. "Our traditions require that if one divides a peach with another he should proffer by preference the half to which the stone adheres. Why? Since the stone adheres that half must be the least ripe, and intelligent politeness should, therefore, give instead the other half." But this is a problem that cannot be solved till some one tells the origin of the usage as first stated.

COUNT VON ARNIM'S TRIAL.

A German Judicial Commission To Take Testimony in Paris.

BERLIN, Oct. 20, 1874.

A Judge will leave this city to-morrow for Paris for the purpose of examining the officials at the German Embassy in that city, thus expediting the trial of Count Von Arnim.

FRANCE.

The Republican Sentiment Prevalent in the Councils General—A Separatist Mayor Removed from Office.

PARIS, Oct. 20, 1874.

Fifty-seven of the Councils General recently elected have effected their organization. In twenty-three of them republican Presidents were chosen.

A TERRITORIAL SEPARATIST REMOVED FROM OFFICE.

The Mayor of Nice has been dismissed from office because he recommended for election to the Councils General candidates who were in favor of the separation of Nice from France.

CUBA.

Negro Incendiaries in the Field—The Crime To Be Punished with Instant Death—Spanish Gain in Battle—Bourse Speculation.

HAVANA, Oct. 17, 1874.

The Commanding General of the Cinco Villas district reports that on the night of the 13th inst. a small band of negroes burned some farm houses at Vega de las Nieves. Pursuit was immediately given.

DEATH PENALTY PROCLAMATION.

In accordance with instructions issued by Captain General Concha all enemies captured in the field who may be convicted of incendiarism will be shot.

SPANISH GAIN IN THE FIELD.

In an engagement on the cattle farm Bartolome between a band of insurgents and a force of Spaniards the former were repulsed with a loss of two killed and one wounded.

BOURSE SPECULATION IN GOLD.

It is reported that a society known as the Liga Reguladora, organized for the purpose of regulating the price of gold, will commence operations on Monday next.

FATAL COLLISION IN THE HARBOR OF HAVANA.

A lighter ran into and sank a Custom House barge on the 15th inst. An officer of the customs service and an interpreter were drowned.

Spanish Reinforcements Preparing to Sail For the Antilles.

MADRID, Oct. 20, 1874.

It is expected that a battalion of marines will be sent to Cuba by the steamer sailing the last of this month.

General Concha Said To Have Prepared a Project of Amnesty.

HAVANA, Oct. 14, 1874.

General Concha has prepared, and is now waiting the sanction of the Madrid government to promulgate, a decree offering a free pardon to all insurgents who lay down their arms and surrender themselves before the 25th of December.

Another decree is also awaiting the sanction of the Madrid authorities giving all persons outside of the island of Cuba who have aided or abetted the rebellion the right to occupy their property on their again becoming citizens of Spain and taking the oath of loyalty. The latter decree gives until the 1st of March, 1875.

The friends of "Cuba Libre" place confidence in the above reports, and as letters have been received here from Manzanilla stating that General Garcia had in view a surrender of his forces, the Cuban sympathizers in Havana are quite in sympathy with the proposed decrees of General Concha. All parties here are for peace.

The above is what I learned at the Palace this morning in conversation with several Spanish officers. I give it as I received it.

SPAIN AND ST. DOMINGO.

A Treaty of Amity, Commerce and International Recognition Signed in Havana.

HAVANA, Oct. 16, 1874.

A treaty of recognition, peace, amity, commerce, navigation and extradition between Spain and St. Domingo has been signed by Captain General Concha and Manuel Joaquin Delmonte as plenipotentiaries.

OCEAN TELEGRAPHY.

A British Man-of-War Usefully Employed.

HAVANA, Oct. 17, 1874.

The British man-of-war Seagull has visited Cienfuegos for the purpose of testing the practicability of laying a cable thence to Jamaica.

FRED A. DOCKRAY.

Private Letter from the Prisoner of Spain at Santander.

BOSTON, Oct. 20, 1874.

A private letter from Fred A. Dockray to a friend in this city, dated Carcel Nacional, Santander, Spain, September 21, briefly narrates his hard experience of Spanish injustice in Cuba and adds:—"I hardly know what my fate is to be. I have to-day received an encouraging telegram from General Cushing, our Minister in Madrid."

UTAH.

The War on Polygamy—Estimate of the Number and Cost of Punishing the Guilty.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 20, 1874.

Eighteen indictments were brought in by the Grand Jury to-day. It is stated that some of the murders committed in the Territory years ago are being investigated, but it is probable that most of the indictments found are for polygamy. The News this evening computes the number of polygamists in the Territory at 1,000 men and 3,000 women, and the cost and loss by punishment of all at $2,000,000.

THE WAR OF RAILROADS.

A Sheriff's Posse Repulsed by a Mob—The Riot Act Read—Prospect of an Amicable Settlement.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20, 1874.

The Circuit Court of Porter County, Indiana, recently decided that the Michigan Central Railroad should permit the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to cross its track near Lake Station, in that county. This right, however, the Central officials refused to accord, and when the employés of the Baltimore and Ohio road were sent to lay the track yesterday they were met by a large force of men, sent out by the Central to stop the work, and as stated in a despatch last night. The County Sheriff, with a posse, attempted to disperse the mob, but was forcibly compelled to fall back. He then read the "Riot Act," and stated the penalties for resistance of the law. He attempted to arrest some of the ringleaders, but was unable to do so. This morning it is stated that steps are being taken to effect an amicable settlement of the difficulty, with every prospect of success.

A COLLISION WAS THREATENED,

POSTAL ARRANGEMENTS WITH CANADA.

OTTAWA, Oct. 20, 1874.

Negotiations are pending between the Dominion government and the government of the United States for a rearrangement of the Postal law between the two countries.

THE WEATHER YESTERDAY.

The following record will show the changes in the temperature for the past twenty four hours, in comparison with the corresponding day of last year, as indicated by the thermometer at Hudnut's pharmacy, HERALD Building:—

LOUISIANA.

Another Indignation Meeting of White Leaguers To Be Held—Federal Authority To Be Resisted in Reference to the Coushatta Arrests.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 20, 1874.

The city is greatly excited to-day over the arrest by federal authority of the alleged murderers in the Coushatta affair; and the Bulletin, the organ of the White League, this afternoon very belligerently calls for another indignation meeting and a union of the citizens to sustain their brethren of the parishes. It says, significantly:—

"Let the usurper see again that the people of the city and State will not submit one moment to his attempted oppression of the white race."

The meeting, which will take place on Saturday night, I am told, is to be a peaceable protest to show the federal officers and others what the people have to complain of. I have just seen Attorney General Field, who intimates that the federal authorities have only just began their work; that those already arrested are not one-twentieth of those who will be; that the arrests will extend to the leaders in this city, and that he is assured that Grant has promised to keep the federal troops here until Louisiana is as quiet as Massachusetts. This may be promulgated to frighten the conservatives and encourage the negroes to appear and vote. One wing of the negroes has severed its allegiance from Kellogg. Through a committee United States Attorney Beckwith says that he will not sustain the agreement between United States Commissioner Twitchell and the citizens of Coushatta to try the offenders in that parish, as Twitchell has no authority to act on behalf of the United States.

The conservatives have information that their city leaders will be arrested.

Compromise Ticket in Jefferson Parish.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 20, 1874.

A compromise has been effected in Jefferson parish between the conservatives and the republicans. The republicans nominated the Sheriff, Coroner and two members of the Legislature and Senator. The conservatives nominated one member of the Legislature and Parish Judge. The conservative and republican clubs then resolved jointly to support E. J. Ellis, conservative candidate for Congress.

THE BINGHAMTON JUDICIAL CONVENTION.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 20, 1874.

The Democratic Judicial Convention for this district, which was held here to-day, adjourned without making a nomination. Judge Countryman, who would have been nominated, recommended that David L. Follett, the republican nominee, be supported.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS.

Horace V. Howland Accepts the Nomination for Court of Appeals—A Denunciation of the Republican Party.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 20, 1874.

Mr. James Brice, Secretary of the Executive Prohibition State Committee, has received a letter of acceptance from Horace V. Howland who was nominated for Judge of the Court of Appeals by the prohibition party. After denouncing in unmeasured terms the course pursued by the republican party respecting the temperance question, which he claims drove from its ranks large numbers of temperance republicans, he says:—

It may be profitable for that great party of reform that sprang into life and being at the call of suffering and needy humanity, to reflect whether, if it shall forget its true mission now and refuse to battle against the worst of all human slavery, it will not be likely to meet merited reproach and death.

The letter is quite lengthy and positive in its declarations.

MASSACHUSETTS POLITICS.

Talbot Accepts the Nomination of the Worcester Convention.

BOSTON, Oct. 20, 1874.

Governor Talbot's acceptance of the nomination for Governor was received to-day. It is a short document, in which Governor Talbot thanks his party for an honor unsolicited and undesired, and designates the republican party as one of progress, humanity and morals. He elected he promises to sustain the high principles which have made the history of the party so successful and glorious.

Nominations by the Chester Conventions.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 20, 1874.

The Republican Convention at Chester to-day made the following nominations:—For Congress, Henry Alexander, Jr., of this city; for District Attorney, N. A. Leonard, of Springfield; for Executive Councillor, E. H. Brewster, of Worthington.

NOMINATION DECLINED.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 20, 1874.

Hon. John Quincy Adams declines the democratic nomination for Senator in the Second Norfolk district, giving as his reason the preposterous length of the legislative session.

RHODE ISLAND.

Democratic Nominations for Congress.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 20, 1874.

The democratic Congressional conventions held in this city to-day were thinly attended. In the Second district Alpheus F. Angell presided, and Mr. George H. Browne, of Gloucester, was nominated for Representative, and accepted.

In the First district Colonel Samuel H. Wales presided. Mr. Charles R. Butler, of Warren, was nominated for Representative.

VERMONT.

Re-election of George F. Edmunds to the United States Senate.

MONTPELIER, Oct. 20, 1874.

The Legislature to-day re elected George F. Edmunds to be United States Senator from Vermont for six years from the 4th of March next. In the Senate the vote was 28 to 1, in the House 151 to 61.

The democrats voted for Edward J. Phelps, and cast 48 votes. The balance of the votes were for Hon. Charles W. Willard, of Montpelier.

THE UNION LEAGUE.

Meeting of the National Executive Committee at Baltimore—Secret Business—Grant Indorsed.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 20, 1874.

An important meeting of the National Executive Committee of the Union League of America was held in this city to-day. The meeting was fully attended. Among those present were ex-Governor Newell, of New Jersey, presiding; Thomas G. Baker, of New York; Colonel Thomas R. Rich, of Maryland; Major Benjamin J. Buckle and Professor Day, of Pennsylvania; George H. Harlow, Secretary of State of Illinois, and Samuel A. MacAllister, of Delaware.

Important secret business looking to a thorough reorganization was transacted. Resolutions commending the appointment of Mr. Jewell as Postmaster General and approving his course as such officer were passed. Provision was made for a meeting of the National Council of the Union League at Cincinnati in January next. A committee was appointed to prepare an address to the Union Leagues of the United States.

President Grant and his administration were indorsed. The session to-day was a long one.

CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATIONS IN ILLINOIS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20, 1874.

The republicans of the First district of Illinois nominated Sidney Smith for Congress, and the republicans of the Third district renominated Hon. Charles B. Farwell by acclamation.

LARGE FIRE IN MEMPHIS.

An Entire Block Destroyed—The Losses and Insurance.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 20, 1874.

About half-past seven o'clock this morning a fire caused by a defective flue broke out in a saloon on Water street, in Elliott block, destroying the entire block. Among the sufferers are Matt. Monohan, boat stores, and Elliott & Miller, steamboat agents and commission merchants.

THE PRINCIPAL LOSSES

are as follows:—

On the building, owned by Shelby county, $60,000; insured for $55,000 in the North British, and $2,500 in the Fireman's Fund, of San Francisco. Mrs. McKinle, on furniture, $1,500; fully insured in the Planter's, of Memphis. A. Boggiano, saloon, $3,000; insured in the City, of Covington, Ky. The losses of Matt. Monohan and Elliott & Miller will probably reach $5,000. Other parties sustained small loss. The total loss is about $75,000.

THE BRITISH WAR SHIP TENEDOS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20, 1874.

The British man-of-war Tenedos, from Panama and other Southern ports, has entered this harbor.

AMUSEMENTS.

Italian Opera.

The most interesting event of the present season of Italian opera will take place this evening, when the young American prima donna, Mlle. Emma Albani, who has in the course of a few years gained an enviable name in Europe, makes her first appearance as Amina in "La Sonnambula," one of Bellini's most melodious works.

The Foundling Asylum Benefit.

The Academy of Music was yesterday crowded to its utmost capacity on the occasion of a benefit given in behalf of the Foundling Asylum under the charge of the Sisters of Mercy. Apart from all consideration of then able object to be served the bill prepared for the entertainment of the public was sufficient to have attracted an immense audience. As much of the most popular entertainments of the day as could be crowded into a series of performances, running over nearly five hours, was given in a manner to leave nothing to be desired. Wallack's and Daly's companies supported the chief weight of the entertainment, but received efficient aid from other theatres. The variety theatres and minstrel troupes also brought their sprightly caricatures and comic songs to add to the amusement of the hour. "St. Patrick's Day Parade," by Harrigan and Hart, was especially enjoyed for the richness and absurdity of its humor. It was something new for the audience, and was, therefore, all the more heartily welcomed. Although a broad caricature it is wholly free from coarseness, and can be enjoyed by those against whom it is levelled as much as by the outside world. The programme included the fourth act of "The School for Scandal," by the members of the Fifth Avenue company; the second act of "Partners for Life," by Wallack's company, Dodworth's Band and Dowling's Ninth Regiment Band played a series of brilliant operatic selections, which were much admired, and the day's performance was brought to a close with selections from Sheridan's mock tragedy, "Pue Critic." The benefit was given under the management of Mr. Augustin Daly, to whom great praise is due for the smoothness with which the series of performances were given. The receipts were very large. Over $3,000 were taken at the doors, and it is calculated that tickets to a like amount were sold outside.

Amateur Entertainment.

On Tuesday evening, October 27, a new society play will be presented at the Lexington Avenue Opera House (Terrace Garden), the authoress being Mrs. Robert W. Nathan, who will appear in the principal rôle. The play deals with a subject of live interest, "Speculation," and the occasion of its presentation will be also a testimonial to the fair authoress by her amateur friends. The talents and accomplishments of Mrs. Nathan as an amateur actress have been frequently devoted to purposes of charity, and her services in this line as well as her remarkable histrionic abilities should attract a large and fashionable assemblage on the occasion referred to. Tickets are for sale at Schirmer's, 701 Broadway, and at Carleton's, under Fifth Avenue Hotel.

Musical and Dramatic Notes.

Twenty-two theatres are in full swing in the French capital.

M. Massenet has just completed a new orchestral suite on Shakespearian subjects.

Mr. Charles Pope has been very successful in St. Louis in the tragedy of "Samson."

The irrepressible offspring of Madame Angot turns up in the most out of the way places. The last is Barcelona, Spain.

Colonel Seiler's popularity at the Park Theatre seems to be on the increase. It is the most decided dramatic hit that the metropolitan boards have known for years.

The Lira Espanol, a journal in Madrid pretending to be an authority in musical matters, says: "The recent performance at the National Opera House of the celebrated opera 'Der Freischutz,' by Wagner, gave great pleasure." Poor Weber!

The Wooster (O.) Republican says: "Miss Minnie Wallace, as Affray, is excruciatingly funny, and most exquisitely piquant. Explosiveness sits well upon her, while her ghostly fear and fits of insubordination and submission were neatly and most artistically delivered." A rather libellous style of criticism.

Mr. Montague has sufficiently recovered from the effect of his accident to appear to-night at Wallack's in the English version of Octave Feuillet's play, "The Romance of a Poor Young Man." The plot of the piece is very interesting. It is also very strongly cast. Mr. Montague will have in this play excellent opportunities for the display of dramatic power. He is constitutionally well fitted to sustain the part of Manuel, Marquis du Champrey, and we have no doubt that in it he will gain with the public additional favor. Mr. John Gilbert appears as Dr. Demarest. Miss Ada Dyas, who won so much favor with the New York public at the Fifth Avenue, makes her first appearance at Wallack's as Marguerite. Miss Effie Germon also appears for the first time this season. Miss Ione Burke and Mme. Ponisi are also in the cast, which is unusually strong.

The Latest New Play.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

The following paragraph appeared in your columns on Saturday morning:—

"Moor Croft; or, The Two Widows," will be produced at the Fifth Avenue Theatre. It is from the pen of Bronson Howard, whose adaptation from the French, "Saratoga," met with considerable public favor.

There are three distinct errors in the above five lines. If this number were not a trifle above the average of errors in the daily newspapers I should not call attention to the two unimportant mistakes in the first line. The main title of the play is in one word, "Moorcroft," and it was so given in your own advertising columns. The second title, "The Double Wedding," contains, at best, only a very distant suggestion of "two widows"—a suggestion which might strike the two bridegrooms of a "double wedding" with almost funereal solemnity. The third mistake is a very serious one. In saying that "Saratoga" is an "adaptation from the French" you cast an imputation upon my integrity as a dramatist. I cannot allow the statement to remain undisputed, because I have laid down for myself a rule of strict literary honesty; a rule from which I have never yet departed, and which I pledge myself to follow rigidly hereafter. Whatever the merits or demerits of my dramatic writing may be (or its demerits see current New York journals; if it has any merits I refer yourself and your readers to the Fifth Avenue Theatre), I shall never impose upon the American public a dramatic composition "adapted from" or "based upon" or "imitated" from a foreign play without acknowledging its true source in every preliminary advertisement and upon the programmes of the theatre. You, sir, ever declare that I have done anything inconsistent with this pledge you may brand my work as a serious literary crime; as great a crime, if possible, as you and some other New York journalists seem to consider any original work I have thus far been guilty of.

As to the comic drama, "Saratoga," I have just settled the question raised in England concerning a possible French origin. It seems strange that a leading journal in my own country should now first discover, after accepting it as an original play for the last our years, that it is an "adaptation from the French. This charge was made in a general way last spring by the London Times, when the play was produced at the Court Theatre under the English title of "Brighton." In a long letter to that journal I used the following language:—

"Now, I hereby make an absolute general denial of this charge of plagiarism, direct or indirect, from French works. * * * I claim the general construction of the entire play. * * * So far, too, as the language is concerned, I insist that no word or sentence of it is derived from any other play whatever, French or English."

In editorial comments on the above-mentioned letter the London Times made no attempt to sustain its previous charge; the editor said, apologetically, that he had no intention of accusing me of plagiarism or theft, and that no wrong to me was intended. Mr. Frank Marshall, the English dramatist, in a letter to the same paper, called out by my own, used the following words:

"I am very sorry that any of the critics have offended Mr. Howard. * * * by accusing him of plagiarism from the French—an accusation which he has now so thoroughly and satisfactorily refuted."

After an experience like this in a foreign land, I am surely justified in asking similar courtesy from a great journal in my own city. I enter into no discussion as to "opinions," whether the play of "Moorcroft, or the Double Wedding," produced on Saturday at the Fifth Avenue Theatre is "rubbish" or not; whether my dialogue is "puerile" or brilliant; whether my characters are taken from real life or are mere puppets; whether you, sir, like the play or despise it. These are questions with which I, as its author, have nothing to do. I am a "third party" in matters of this kind; the questions lie between you and the public. The people laugh at my dialogue; you say that dialogue is dull. The people applaud my situations heartily; you say those situations are unworthy of an intelligent audience. I am an interested but peaceful spectator of this contest between the public and the press. Fight it out between you, and "may the best man win." When, however, you charge me with adapting a play from the French, while claiming it as original, you charge me with dishonesty, both as a man and as an author. You charge me with having done that, at the very outset of my career, which would make the rule of my literary life, to which I have pledged myself, a piece of hypocrisy. I ask you to withdraw the charge contained in the paragraph quoted above, or else to name the particular French play from which "Saratoga" was "adapted." Very respectfully yours,

BRONSON HOWARD.

BOLD BANK ROBBERY.

The Cashier Bound and Gagged in the Night and Forced to Accompany the Robbers—How the Keys Were Obtained—$100,000 Worth of Securities Taken.

BOSTON, Oct. 20, 1874.

Last night F. T. Sawyer, cashier of the Souhegan National Bank, Milford, awoke to find his room occupied by six masked men. They gagged him, put a rope around his neck, and shut his wife, four children and servant in a closet. Mr. Sawyer has long been in the habit of leaving the keys of the bank in the possession of the Postmaster of the town, whose office is about a quarter of a mile from the residence of Mr. Sawyer. This precaution was taken by the latter in order to guard against such a scheme as that followed out by the robbers. The parties engaged in the robbery seemed to be well aware of the disposition of the keys, and after placing a cord around Mr. Sawyer's neck to prevent any outcry, forced him to accompany them by threatening to kill his babe in case he refused to comply with their demands. Arriving at the Post Office the robbers effected an entrance by removing a pane of glass with a diamond, and the keys of the bank were soon in their possession. They then dragged him to the bank and made him which they robbed of about $4,500 in currency, $15,000 to $20,000 in bonds—mostly governments, owned by Robert R. Harrison—and some other securities, amounting in all to near $100,000. This done they led him back to the house, tied him to a bedpost and left. The family forced open the closet about four o'clock and gave the alarm, but nothing of the robbers could be discovered. The cashier thinks that at least a dozen men were at the bank. The loss does not affect the bank's solvency.

OPEN THE VAULT,

W. B. Towne, J. Fileman and C. S. Averill are heavy losers, having had securities deposited for safe-keeping. A portion of the bonds taken are registered and therefore not available.

The matter has been placed in the hands of Chief of Police Savage, of Boston, and detectives have been detailed to make a thorough investigation. Professionals undoubtedly planned the robbery in advance.

THE SAFE BURGLARY.

Trial of the Alleged Conspirators Begun in the Criminal Court—Non-Appearance of Some of the Accused.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20, 1874.

Judge Humphreys, holding the Criminal Court, announced to-day the trial of the safe burglary conspirators. Columbus Alexander, Richard Harrington, A. B. Williams, Colonel Whitley, Michael Hayes and Zeiruth, included in the indictment, were present. The absentees were Nettleship, Benton and Cunz. There was a large array of counsel on each side. Mr. Hinkle presented an affidavit of Whitley, asking a postponement of his case until the next term of the Court, owing to the absence of ex-Solicitor Banfield and Samuel E. Chadnler, the one being in California, and the other sick in Cambridge, Mass., both being important witnesses in his behalf and who would prove Whitley's innocence. The Court overruled the motion for postponement, saying Banfield could be telegraphed to appear and the deposition of Chandler could be taken at his home. The Judge said this case had been before the public too long already, and therefore should not be further delayed. Mr. Hinkle also presented an affidavit from Nettleship, now in New Jersey, saying his wife expects to be sick, &c., thus in part accounting for his absence from Court. This was not satisfactory to the Judge, who directed the Marshal to call Nettleship to come into court. The Marshal therefore called three several times for Nettleship to come into Court. Not hearing his appearance, the Judge declared his recognizances to be forfeited, and a bench warrant will be issued for his arrest.

Mr. Riddle asked that Whitley be required to give bail in the sum of $10,000 for his appearance from day to day for trial. His own recognizance was taken for that amount and the Court adjourned till to-morrow.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

Orders of Assignment and Detachment—The Fever at Pensacola.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20, 1874.

Commander G. C. Wiltse is ordered to special duty in taking charge of a draft of men for the receiving ship Independence, to leave in the Pacific mail steamer of the 24th inst.; Midshipman John W. Beane, to duty in the North Pacific station; Boatswain Charles Miller, to the naval station at League Island, Pa.

Commodore Pierce Crosby is detached from the Washington Navy Yard and placed on waiting orders; Commander R. S. McCook from the Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy Yard and placed on waiting orders; Lieutenants R. C. Hooker, James W. Carlin and Edward W. Reeves, from torpedo duty and ordered to the hydrographic office; Lieutenants F. W. Crocker, F. Harlord, H. O. Colby, E. D. Taussig, Theodore Porter, L. C. Logan and A. R. Corden, from torpedo duty and placed on waiting orders; Lieutenant R. M. G. Brown, from torpedo duty and ordered to duty as executive officer of the Despatch; Lieutenant J. M. Hawley and Master R. G. Peck, from torpedo duty and ordered to duty on the coast survey; Ensign John E. Roller, from the Roanoke, and ordered to duty in the North Pacific station; Midshipman W. Allderdice, from receiving ship Potomac, and ordered to duty on the North Pacific station.

THE FEVER AT PENSACOLA.

A telegram received at the Navy Department this morning from Captain A. A. Semmes, commanding at the Pensylvania Navy Yard, announces that Creigler, machinist of the tugboat Rose; O'Dowd, fireman, and Berroman, seaman, of the Ajax, were attacked with fever on Sunday. O'Dowd died; the others are doing well.

The Grounding of the Brooklyn at Key West.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20, 1874.

A court of inquiry will be held on board of the Brooklyn, at Norfolk, on the 20th inst., as to the grounding of that ship while leaving the harbor of Key West. The Court will be composed of Commodore Nicholson, President; Commodore Cooper and Captain Harris, members; William B. Remey, captain of marines, Judge Advocate.

THE TORPEDO STATION.

Arrival of Rear Admiral Davis and the Examining Board at Newport—Experiments Made with the Deadly Explosives.

NEWPORT, R. I., October 20, 1874.

A salute of thirteen guns was fired at Torpedo Station to-day, in honor of the arrival of Rear Admiral Davis and the official board appointed to make the necessary examination of the torpedo officers who finish their six months' studies at the station here. Some excellent torpedo experiments were made by submarine batteries from the shore, but they did not present such a magnificent spectacle as those which were fired off upon the visit of the Senate Naval Committee last summer and fully described by a HERALD special correspondent. To-morrow the class, accompanied by the Board, will take out the torpedo boat Intrepid and show their proficiency in the execution of the necessary evolutions for the exploding of boom and spar torpedoes. The Ericsson torpedo will also be brought into use for another trial, and it is hoped it will do all that its inventor claims for it.

In anticipation of the examination several trials have been had by the officers of the Intrepid, within the past fortnight, with the Ericsson invention, but, as yet, they are not as well pleased with it as they are with the invention of John L. Lay.

YACHTING NOTES.

Yacht Wanderer, N.Y.Y.C., Mr. James Stillman, from New York, passed Whitestone yesterday, en route for Portland.

The Manhattan Yacht Club will have a scrub race, chowder and clambake to-morrow, from their club house, foot of East Eighty-ninth street.

Yacht Marcia sailed for Cowes yesterday morning, at half-past ten o'clock.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Fireman and Brakeman Killed—Passengers Injured.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 20, 1874.

The engine, baggage car and one of the second class passenger cars on the Memphis and Little Rock Railroad were thrown from the track today. The fireman and a brakeman were killed, and several passengers were severely, but not dangerously, injured.

BALTIMORE RACES.

First Day of the Annual Fall Meeting.

Harry Bassett the Winner of the Mile Dash, Vandalite the Dixie Stakes, Bannerette the Two Mile Dash and Limestone the Hurdle Race.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 20, 1874.

The annual fall meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club commenced to-day at the Pimlico course. The track was in fine condition and the weather fair and bright.

DASH OF ONE MILE.

The first race was a mile dash, for all ages that have not won since July 1 this year; $350 for the first horse and $50 for the second. Fifteen horses came to the post, as follows:—Harry Bassett, Gray Planet, Lottie Moon, Resolute, Carlina, Rosebud, First Chance, Keene Richards, Hattie O'Neill, Chief Engineer, Boz, Audubon, Frank, Stanford and Jury. One of the pools sold before the start was:—Gray Planet, $120; Harry Bassett, $75; Lottie Moon, $55; Resolute, $55; Field, $60.

After several false starts they all got off except Stanford, who sulked and refused to run. McDaniel's Harry Bassett came in a winner, Belmont's Gray Planet a good second, and Cottrill's Lottie Moon third. Time, 1:44½.

DIXIE STAKES.

The second race was the Dixie Stakes for three-year-olds, two miles, $300 subscription, $100 forfeit; Colonel McDaniel to add $2,000; the second horse to receive $1,000 from the Maryland Jockey Club; the third horse to receive $500 out of the stakes; closed January 1, 1874, with sixty-eight nominations. The value of the stakes to the winner is $11,300. The following horses started:—Picolo, Rutherford, Brigand, Aaron Pennington, Paladin, Vandalite, Dublin, Moses Primrose, Judge Thurman, Madge, Josie B., Carlina, Bonaventure, Ed. Breathitt and Grinstead. One of the pools before the start sold as follows:—McDaniel's entries, $500; Lewis & Co.'s, $675; Denison & Crawford's, $200; Jennings', $160; Sanford's, $130; field, $130. Lewis & Co.'s Vandalite took the lead at the start and kept it to the end, coming in six lengths ahead of McDaniel's Madge, Sanford's Brigand third, Denison & Crawford's Rutherford fourth. During the race Chamberlin's Carlina threw her rider, but he was not hurt. Time, 3:35¾.

TWO-MILE HEAT.

The third event was a two-mile heat race for all ages. Purse $600 to the first horse, $100 to the second. The starters were:—Sanford's Mate, 5 years, carrying 114 lbs.; Lewis & Co's Bessie Lee, 5 years, 111 lbs.; Turnbull's Bannerette, 3 years, 92 lbs., and Stone's Colonel Nelligan, 3 years, 95 lbs. In the pools before the first heat Mate sold at $550 to $100 on the field. Bannerette took the lead on the start and kept it until the last quarter, when Mate collared her, and they came up the home-stretch neck and neck, Mate passing under the string winner by a head, Bessie Lee third and Colonel Nelligan distanced. Time, 3:37¼.

The second heat was won by Bannerette, Bessie Lee being second and Mate third. Time, 3:39¾.

The third heat and the race was also won by Bannerette, who came home in a canter, Mate being badly distanced. Time, 3:47½.

The fourth contest was a hurdle race The attendance numbered about 2,500 persons.

THE COURTS.

Important Partnership Question—Court of Appeals Decision.

The New York Sportsmen's Club on Speckled Trout.

In March, 1873, a motion was made in Supreme Court, Chambers, before Judge Barrett, on behalf of a Mrs. Beaumont, to compel Messrs. Howe & Hummel to return certain moneys which she alleged they had received for services not performed. Judge Barrett denied the application, it being shown that Mrs. Beaumont had been convicted of keeping a house of ill fame, and that she was not worthy of relief on such a ground. The matter was reviewed yesterday in Supreme Court, General Term, and an order granted against the defendants to show cause why they should not answer the matter stated in Mrs. Beaumont's affidavit. The paper was made returnable on the first Monday next.

There was a hearty calendar in the Court of Oyer and Terminer yesterday, before Judge Brady, the calendar consisting of forty-one cases, there being eleven indictments for felonious assault and battery, eight grand larceny, eight for former convictences, four for receiving stolen goods, three for assault and battery, two for manslaughter, two for forgery, and one each for robbery, arson, attempt to induce perjury, misdemeanor and perjury. In the latter were represented by counsel, excepting John H. Decker, charged with robbery, in which case Judge Brady assigned Mr. Dos Passos as counsel.

Greedy and unscrupulous persons who for a consideration have no hesitancy in swearing to their pecuniary responsibility as proper sureties on bail bonds or undertakings have a chance, according to an intimation thrown out by Judge Lawrence in Supreme court, Chambers, yesterday, of being sent before the Grand Jury. A case of this kind was made against certain parties, and the Judge took the papers, but meantime intimating that a good deal of this sort of business, he understood, had been done, and where the fact was brought to his knowledge he said he should see that proper punishment was meted out.

In the United States Circuit Court yesterday, criminal side, before Judge Benedict, the indictment against W. H. Tindle, who had been charged with committing acts of fraud in connection with Ruptor, was quashed on the ground that it was not sufficiently specific.

The trial of Commissioner Davenport on the charge of malfeasance in office had been set down for yesterday, but by consent of the parties it was postponed till to-morrow, before Judge Woodruff.

In the United States Circuit Court yesterday, Judge Shipman called the civil jury calendar. It turned out a fruitful day in the matter of cases on the calendar only one was ready, and that of an unimportant character. The government declared that they were ready in all their causes, but the defendants or their counsel were not.

A case of considerable interest to the importers of white lead will be tried to-day. Judge Shipman said that until he gave further notice lawyers need not pay attention to any case below No. 200 on the calendar.

In the case of the United States vs. W. E. Boorain and Robert Dumont, in which an action was brought to recover $800 on a warehouse bond, the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff.

The following enumerated goods were yesterday condemned by decision of Judge Blatchford, of boy, one pair of diamond earrings, ten pieces of silk and 15 pieces of white lace. The oil of bay was imported on the steamer Merrimac and the other articles on the steamer Adriatic.

PARTNERSHIPS.

Alfred Losee vs. Charles Mathews.—This was a suit to treat a judgment which the defendant had recovered against one Coe for $100,000 as a partnership asset of an alleged partnership of Simeon & Alfred Losee. The plaintiff on the trial before the referee (the late Judge Tracy) had introduced in evidence two agreements, under which he claimed that he was entitled, and that the agreement between his father and himself as a partnership and that the judgment in question was a partnership asset. There was further and final evidence introduced on the trial as to the verity of the two papers, the circumstances under which the papers were executed at the same time, and not, as the dates imported, several years apart, and introducing evidence from the witnesses, and sending to show that they were executed at the same time.

The plaintiff offered to prove by two witnesses that one of the two papers was seen by the witnesses in 1856, which was true, and executed at the time the evidence claimed that they had been executed together. This evidence was objected to, and was ruled out by the referee, and he rendered judgment against the plaintiff. The plaintiff, through Mr. Jerome McMahon, his counsel, appealed to the General Term, and the General Term, by Judge Curtis, affirmed the judgment. Counsel then appealed to the Court of Appeals and it was heard before the Commission of Appeals in the City Hall, being argued by appellant's counsel and by Mr. Mathews on the decision. The Court reversed the judgment and granted a new trial, holding that the evidence of the above two witnesses as to the facts of the instruments executed should be received.

The opinion of the Court, condensed, recites that in a case so complicated as to the facts as this appears to have been, a liberal application of the rules of evidence would be the best way to elicit the truth and promote justice. I have before suggested that one of the great difficulties of the plaintiff in the case proved nothing more than that the plaintiff in 1852 had an interest in the business of the Atlantic Dock, of which part there was conclusive parol evidence given on the part of the plaintiff, and if this evidence was not strictly rebutting I do not see why the plaintiff may not have received without the aid of the paper already referred to, as it is specially referred to in the subsequent agreement. There should be a new trial. All concur. Judgment reversed. New trial granted. Costs to abide event.

A SPECKLED TROUT CASE.

An interesting case to sporting men, but more particularly those of piscatorial proclivities, came on for trial yesterday before Judge Van Brunt, in the Supreme Court, Circuit. The plaintiff in the action is Mr. Loyal Pegg, President of the New York Sportsmen's Club. Two Fulton Market men—Messrs. Chappell and Storer—were charged in the complaint with exposing for sale, in Fulton Market, on July 9, 1873, trout illegally taken. The action was brought under the law passed by the Legislature this year to prevent the sale of trout caught in the county in the city between the 15th of March and the 15th of November, and for each fish offered for sale within this time a penalty of $25 was attached, making the penalty sought to be recovered in the present case to be $1,000. By a very simple mathematical calculation, $1,000. The defence was that these were not brook or speckled trout, but Canadian trout. A number of witnesses were called for the prosecution, who gave their particular view as to what was speckled trout in general. After these experts had exhausted the piscatorial erudition—and some of them showed an intimacy with the subject reflecting no discredit upon themselves as disciples of Izaak Walton—the counsel for the defence moved a verdict for the defendants, or, in other words, a dismissal of the complaint. Though claiming not to know much about fishing per issum, he did claim to know something about the law governing the case. He insisted that it was not shown that the fish in question were caught in New York waters, but having been caught in Canada, were taken outside the jurisdiction of the State, and that if the catching in Canada and exposing here for sale such trout came within the prohibitory cause of the statute, that the statute was unconstitutional and void. This motion was denied, and thereupon ensued an examination of the witnesses for the defence. The jury was absent two hours, and then brought in a verdict for the defendants.

BUSINESS IN THE OTHER COURTS.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Motions for New Trials.
Before Judges Davis and Daniels.

There were three arguments heard in this Court yesterday for motions for new trials. Ex. Howe appearing for the motions, and District Attorney Phelps in opposition. The first was on behalf of Edward Murphy, convicted in the General sessions of assaulting John North, in this city, on the 12th of February, 1873, and robbing him of his valise and its contents, on which he was sentenced by Recorder Hackett to twenty years' imprisonment. The second was on behalf of John McGuire, convicted in the same Court for rape, and also sentenced to State Prison for twenty years. The third was on behalf of Thomas Foster, also convicted in the same Court, his offence being burglary in the third degree. The Court took the papers, reserving its decisions.

COMMON PLEAS—SPECIAL TERM.

Novel and Interesting Question.
Before Judge Robinson.

An action was brought in this court by Andrew McGwin against the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company for damages for injuries sustained by him by being run over by a switch engine. When the case was moved for trial in this court before Judge J. Daly, the defendants asked for a postponement until the 15th of the month. The application was refused, as the plaintiff was in a dying condition, and that in case of death before verdict the action would abate and that the right of recovery should be allowed. The Court decided to grant the adjournment until the 15th instant, stipulating that in case of the plaintiff's death at any time before the 15th of June, or at any time before verdict, the case should be tried on the 15th of June, neither the action nor the cause of action should abate. The case was tried on the 15th of June. The cause was tried and the jury disagreed, standing eleven for the plaintiff and one for the defendants. In consideration of bringing cause to trial again ex-Judge Cardozo, counsel for the plaintiff, moved, and by consent, was allowed to substitute as plaintiff the executor of Mr. McGwin's estate, which was opposed by Mr. John E. Burrill. After arguments Judge Robinson took the motion for consideration to be valid and binding, as the defendants had had the benefit of the trial, they may be held to it on their part, and granted the motion.

JEFFERSON MARKET POLICE COURT.

Broadway Burglars.
Before Judge Flammer.

As Officer Graham, of the fifteenth precinct, was passing the trunk store of Robert A. Coe, 51 Broadway, about five o'clock yesterday morning, he noticed a man leaning against the window. On the officer's approach the man ran away, whereupon Officer Graham discovered that the window was broken and suspecting a burglary had been committed, he gave chase. He finally overtook the prisoner gave his name as William Hayes, No. 62 Oliver street, and described himself as a speculator. Hayes was arraigned before Judge Flammer yesterday morning and held in $1,500 bail to answer on a charge of burglary, as a quantity of umbrellas were missed from the window which had been broken.

FIFTY-SEVENTH STREET POLICE COURT.

No More of the "Watch Security" Business.

James and Patrick Doyle, brothers, were brought up for being intoxicated. They appeared to be simple looking natives of the Emerald Isle, but Pat's conduct in Court belied his appearance. He had evidently read of the recent transactions in this Court in regard to the taking of watches as security for fines, and when the matter became assessful in imposing upon the credulity of the present Judge, he offered a rusty old timepiece as security for the payment of Brother's fine. Previous to this the Court had felt like taking a mercian view of the men's conduct, and have turned their ear to their supplications, and they be committed for ten days each.

Karnitzki's Bond Supposed to be Worthless.

The examination in the case of Karnitzki, the alleged "receiver" and "fence," was set down for yesterday in this court before Judge Otterburg. Karnitzki did not appear, but his counsel did, and moved for an adjournment on the ground that his client was too ill to appear. The Court would grant an adjournment if counsel produced a physician's certificate in proof of the statement. Counsel then waived an examination, and the papers in the case were handed to the District Attorney. Officer Murphy, of the twenty-first precinct, was present, and stated that he knew Prosecuted Karnitzki had he appeared. Another complaint, making five in all, has been made against him by Peter Palmer, No. 1,145 Broadway, street, property stolen from him having been found in Karnitzki's house. Another charge made for Karnitzki in his house and other places by the police after his discharge on bail, but so far they have been unable to find the owner. It is also concluded that the $6,000 bond given for his appearance for examination on Monday, by Lottie Maxwell, of West Thirty-eighth street, is worthless. Captain Allaire wishes the persons who have recently lost property in his station house, in Thirty-fifth street, near Third avenue, with the view of identifying property in his possession found in Karnitzki's place. One article in the hands of the Captain deserves special mention; it is an ultramarine opera cloak, trimmed with gold braid and lined with yellow satin. It was probably made in Paris or Berlin and is of great value.

WANT

THE GLENDENNING TRIAL.

The Whole Sad Story Rehearsed by Mrs. Miller.

GLENDENNING'S LEVITY IN COURT.

Yesterday was the seventh day of the trial of the Rev. John S. Glendenning before the Presbytery of Jersey City, at the Prospect avenue church. The attendance of ladies was very large, the pews on the left side of the church being filled exclusively by them.

Justice Aldridge was recalled. Counsel for the prosecution questioned him in regard to the statement made by Mr. Glendenning in the Justice's office on the night of the arrest. Mr. Glendenning said on that night, "Would not a written confession clear me?" The Justice answered that it might, possibly.

Mrs. Ethelinda Miller was then called. She went over the oft told story with minuteness of detail and with deep solemnity of manner. After sketching the introduction of Glendenning to the deceased the witness proceeded:—Her strange actions excited my suspicions; I communicated my suspicions to Mr. Miller's aunt and told her that if she knew anything was wrong she should tell me; it then flashed across my mind that they were married, but that he did not want his mother and sister to know of it; on the 13th of July, in the morning, I came down the stairs suddenly upon Mary, and I had only to look at her to see what was the matter; I turned away in horror and Mary asked what was the matter or whether I was sick: I said I was sick at heart; I had prepared to go to New York and I became terribly excited; I told Mr. Miller after I returned from New York and told him that before I slept that night I must know the facts of the case; I talked with Mary that night about it; she denied the charge most strenuously and turned very pale; I asked her whether she was married and after a great deal of hesitation she gasped out "yes;" I then told her to go and get her certificate at once; she tottered and fell across my knees; "Oh, my God!" I said, "you are not married." (Here Mrs. Miller was overcome with emotion); Mr. Miller happened to come in just then; I said to Mary, "Go for Mr. Glendenning at once;" she looked up and said it was too late; I told her that he was there in that house much later than that; I then asked her was Mr. Glendenning the father of that child, and she said that he was; I took her to her room and talked with her, telling her that she brought this trouble upon herself, but that, after all, I had only myself to blame for going to bed and allowing any one to remain in the house, but that I had all the confidence in the world in her and in him, and that I thought I could on the night of Mr. Glendenning's arrest, when he came in, I said I was glad he came, that I wanted to see him on business; he said, "Pray, what might that business be?" I told him I wanted him to be married, and he asked to whom; I told him "To Mary, that you ruined;" he answered, "No, indeed, mum," raising his hand and shaking his head in an indifferent way; I believe I fainted that night, for the next thing I recollect I was up stairs.

Mrs. Miller then related the pistol scene as previously described—When Mr. Glendenning said that if he was found out he would be a ruined man, and she said to him in astonishment, "And what would it do to me?" he told her to trust to him, that he would stand by her to the very end and see her all right, but that she must clear him; she then wrote as he dictated, and she told me that everything seemed black before her eyes.

AN EXCITING SCENE.

Here Glendenning laughed outright, and Mrs. Miller resented it quickly, saying, with a voice of indignation, "Sir, I don't see anything in this to laugh at."

Dr. Imbrie—I hope the Moderator will preserve order.

The Moderator (rapping)—Order must be preserved. (A murmur of disapprobation at the unseemly interruption ran through the church.)

Mrs. Miller continued—The substance of the document signed by Mary while Glendenning held the pistol over her head was that he could implicate half a dozen members of his church.

Dr. Imbrie—Were any names mentioned?

A. There were no names in it; if there were he put them there after she wrote it; she could not tell any more in relation to the contents of that document; Mary gave me the date of her seduction by Mr. Glendenning as the 4th of July, 1873, while we were away in the country; it occurred in the back parlor. Mrs. Miller then rehearsed the story of her visit to the Institution for Infants, in Clinton place, New York; the visit was suggested by Miss Pomeroy; Dr. Hubbard, after inquiring about the case, described Mr. Glendenning accurately, as the man who had visited the institution six weeks' previously, to have a young girl admitted till her child should be born; the matron of the institution also described him and when I showed her Glendenning's picture she identified it at once, saying, "That is the man;" the physician told her she ought to be careful as she might have to swear to it; the matron replied that she could swear to it; Mr. Pomeroy and Mrs. Metz came with me; the conversation took place in presence of Mrs. Metz; in a conversation with Mary, when I saw there was a burden on her mind I asked her what the burden was; she said that he (meaning Glendenning) was constantly accusing her of being intimate with other men. (Here the witness mentioned the names of eight gentlemen, some of them being members of Glendenning's church.) He told her that he and Mr. Dean had watched her and that they saw her walk home on one occasion with one of the gentlemen referred to, and he said that he supposed they had a good time when they went into the house; he said he could prove she was intimate with these men; in explanation of that she said that Mr. —— once held his umbrella over her head coming from church, but he did not go into the house; I became indignant, and asked her was it possible she took all that from him, and she gave me this reply, "It was he held over my head; I was in a condition that prevented my saying a word; I was wholly in his power." (Sensation.) I tried to cheer her up, but it seemed as if there was a heavier burden still resting on her; I told her to tell me whatever was on her mind, as she had my forgiveness, and she threw up her hands and said, "How can I leave this good home, the best home I ever had in my life?" I told her to cheer up, that she should continue to live with us and face the trouble; she replied, "No, I will die if I leave here and I will die if I stay." (Sensation.) At that time she was lying in bed in a very weak condition; in the conversation about the father of the child she said, "I hear that through the streets; I wonder if he would laugh if he came in here to-night and looked at me on this bed from which I begin to feel I will never rise and saw the misery that he has brought upon me, and not only upon me, but on you who did not deserve it; I hear too, that he is boasting about the child coming nearer home, but as God is my judge, John S. Glendenning and no one else is the father of that child."

In describing the deathbed scene the witness gave the following new points:—We wished to have some clergyman come to pray with her, but none could be found; Mr. Dunne and Mr. Gordon, both elders of this church, came and prayed with her; she said to them, "Mr. Dunne and Mr. Gordon you are both good men; you have heard his story, but you have not heard mine; in an unguarded moment I fell and John S. Glendenning fell with me; and I want to proclaim to you, before God as my witness, that Mr. Glendenning is the father of my child; they say he has got papers, but that does not clear him;" this was said to Mr. Dunne; I was in the room; Mr. Dunne then asked to be left alone with her for a few moments.

The remainder of Mrs. Miller's testimony was a corroboration of that already published. Regarding Mr. Glendenning's more recent visits to Miss Pomeroy the witness said:—During a part of the year he would come in stealthily and would be in the house without our knowing it; at last I heard it from the neighbors, and not liking the rumors that were going around among the neighbors I spoke to Mary about it and told her it seemed very singular and that I did not like it.

This closed the direct examination and the cross-examination by Mr. Dod was progressing when the hour of adjournment arrived.

METHODIST TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.

The delegates to the annual session of the New York Methodist Conference Temperance Society reassembled in the Thirtieth street M. E. Church at an early hour yesterday morning. They listened to several papers treating of subjects connected with intemperance and dismissed a variety of german topics. The query upon which they dwelt longest was:—

If prohibition is to be settled at the polls, then what is the duty of the Church?

The opinions expressed by the speakers only in a few instances really applied to what was given as the subject of debate. Most of the speakers denounced both of the political parties, though they applied their whips more severely to the democratic than the republican party, and most of them advocated the support of the new temperance party, which they said should be made the great moral and political power of the land. Other speakers thought that it would not do to allow "the devil of democracy to ravage the State, even for the short time before the materials of a new and powerful moral party could coalesce, or before the prohibitionists would frighten the republicans into terms." Another speaker regarded his duty to his country as paramount to his duty to the temperance cause, and could not approve of the new party as it tended to put the democracy into power. The discussion was closed very unsatisfactorily, as the programme of the Convention had to be adhered to strictly. At four P. M. the delegates rose, and a children's mass meeting was held. In the evening they and their friends held a mass meeting.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

An Adjourned Meeting Ordered to Report a List of Candidates—The Committee of Twenty-One.

The Republican County Convention was held last night, at Robinson Hall, Thirty-third street and Broadway. There was a very crowded attendance, Mr. Thomas Murphy in the chair. The names of the delegates from the respective districts were called over by General Pinckney, after which Mr. Jacob M. Patterson, of the Tenth district, moved that a committee of twenty-one be appointed to receive nominations, and to report a list of candidates at an adjourned meeting of the Convention to be held on Thursday evening next at Republican Hall.

The resolution was carried after a motion, which was subsequently withdrawn by Colonel Duganne to nominate Mr. George Jones as a candidate for the office of Mayor. The following were named as the committee which will meet this morning at the rooms of the Republican Association, No. 457 Fourth avenue, near Thirty-second street.

THE COMMITTEE.

After the adjournment of the Convention, which took place immediately after the passage of the above resolution, a very large number of the delegates adjourned to the Republican Committee rooms at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. The following list was not decided upon until after eleven o'clock, and it was then given to the press:—

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

A large number of business men met yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce to urge the adoption by the people in the coming election of the proposed amendments to the State Constitution which have been prepared as required by law by a convention duly called for that purpose, approved by the Legislature, and now only await the affirmative voice of a majority of the voters of the State to become part of the organic law. Mr. William E. Dodge, the President, briefly stated the reason of the call, when a preamble and resolution declaring the sentiment of the Chamber to be urgently in favor of the adoption of the amendments and calling on all good citizens to labor earnestly for that end. Messrs. George Opdyke, Erastus Brooks and F. B. Thurber made strong speeches in favor of the amendments, and a committee, consisting of Messrs. Opdyke, Thurber, Henry, Royal Phelps and William Butler Duncan, were appointed to confer with other organizations to bring the subject to public notice, and to advocate the adoption of the amendments.

THE IMPORTERS AND GROCERS.

A special meeting for the same purpose was held at the Importers and Grocers' Board of Trade, Mr. William A. Booth presiding. Messrs. Charles Hill, George C. Collins, H. G. Farrington and F. B. Thurber made speeches in favor of the amendments, and urging the merchants to activity in order to secure their adoption by the voters.

THE BAR ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of the Bar Association last night a spirited debate took place on the question of an indorsement of the amendments. It was finally decided by a vote adopting the report of a committee that the subject was foreign to the objects of the association.

THE THIRD TERM.

Among the prominent republicans at the Fifth Avenue Hotel last night was Lieutenant Governor Robinson. In course of conversation with a HERALD reporter a reference was made by General Robinson to the third term question. In reply to an inquiry as to whether General Dix would declare himself on this matter, the Lieutenant Governor said that he had no doubt that if the question was put to the Governor he would answer it so clearly that nobody would mistake the position taken by Governor Dix. At the same time he (General Robinson) was free to confess that in his judgment the question of the third term, in its relation to the present State canvass, was quite aside of any important interests involved therein. He did not believe that the people were much exercised by that question; neither did he think there would have been any anxiety about it felt by the people, had it not been for the articles in the HERALD. "The early articles in the HERALD have, in my judgment," said General Robinson, "put the question before the country and stimulated a premature expression of opinion."

A BUTTER FRAUD.

How a Wayne County Dairyman Caught the Man who had Swindled Him—Mr. Snow, alias Wiggins, alias A. A. Greely & Co., alias Peter S. Clark & Co., Held for Trial.

The case of a man who labored under a terrible mistake regarding the side on which his bread was buttered was heard at the Tombs Police Court yesterday morning. Mr. Bradshaw, of Alton, Wayne county, New York, was swindled out of $330 worth of butter on the 10th of the present month. The manner in which he traced his lost goods and finally captured his victimizer would do credit to any of our metropolitan detectives, whose ability, unfortunately for the city, is in no way equal to their reputation. On the 6th of October Mr. Bradshaw, who keeps an extensive dairy, received a letter from "A. A. Greely & Co.," Middletown, Conn., ordering him to send fifteen tubs and one firkin of butter to "Peter S. Clark," New London, Conn. Mr. Bradshaw put up the butter and shipped it as directed, and the same day made a sight draft on "A. A. Greely & Co." The note was sent to the Bank of Middletown, and the cashier of that institution immediately returned it with the remark that there was no such firm in the town.

On receipt of this information a letter of inquiry was sent to the cashier of the First National Bank of New London asking if he knew of such a firm as "Peter S. Clark & Co." Two days later Mr. Bradshaw received a letter from New London stating that no such firm existed in the city. An ordinary dairyman would have stopped here, but Bradshaw was not to be daunted. He sat down and wrote to Mr. Prentiss, the agent of the Norwich line of steamers, asking him if he could give any information regarding the lost butter. That gentleman wrote back that it had been receipted for at Middletown by a man named James Snow, and that Snow had immediately reshipped it to New York, the consignment being marked "G. Sherman & Co., No. 342 Greenwich street." This was a clew, and Mr. Bradshaw came down to New York to trace his lost butter. He went to the Fifth precinct station house, and Officer Stevens was detailed to work up the case. Mr. Bradshaw told the officer his story, and it was at once decided to go to the store on Greenwich street and ask Mr. Sherman if he had the goods. On entering the place, Mr. Bradshaw recognized some of his property, which was on the floor of the store. Mr. Sherman was not in, but Mr. E. H. Coffin, the clerk, gave an account of how the goods came there. He said that a man named Wiggins had brought the goods to the house and left them for Mr. Sherman to sell on commission. The consignment was fifteen tubs of butter and one firkin, but only five tubs and the firkin now remained, as Mr. Wiggins had been there in the morning and took the tubs away with him on a truck. The remaining stock Mr. Sherman had purchased for $83, and had given Wiggins a check for that amount.

The officer got a slight clew as to where Wiggins, alias Snow, could be found, and after a twenty-four hours' search he found and arrested him on a warrant. When brought to Court yesterday morning Wiggins, alias Snow, said his name was Wiggins, but he refused to say anything regarding his guilt or innocence.

The Judge took the papers and committed Snow in default of $2,000 bail to answer the charge of cheating by trick and device, at the Court of General Sessions.

A TARDY COMPLIMENT.

Over twenty-five years ago the Common Council of New York authorized the presentation of silver medals to the 400 surviving members of the war scarred First regiment of New York volunteers for the Mexican war. Accordingly, the medals were coined. They are of solid silver, two inches in diameter. On one side is the city arms, surrounded by the inscription, "Presented by the City of New York to the New York Regiment of Volunteers in Mexico." On the reverse side is a goddess of war standing on a Roman galley, with the castle of San Juan de Ulloa on the right, and pointing on the left to the city of Vera Cruz. Surrounding these are the names, "Chapultepec, Churubusco, Vera Cruz and Cerro Gordo." Each medal also bore the name of the veteran to whom it was awarded. By some strange mystery, in the course of the distribution forty of them were lost and could nowhere be found. Among those which disappeared was one for Colonel Kerrigan.

A couple of weeks ago General Pinckney, Clerk of the Common Council, found the missing medals in an old safe, and notified the Board of Aldermen, who passed a resolution that the medals be given to the parties for whom they were intended. Colonel Kerrigan set about hunting up his old comrades, but only succeeded in finding five:—Captain John Cook, of the Adjutant General's office at Albany; David W. Dyckman, of the Sanitary squad; Peter Waters, George F. Stringer and Jacob Childs. These parties, together with General Ward B. Burnett, who commanded the regiment, met yesterday in General Pinckney's office to receive the medals. General Pinckney in making the presentation said it afforded him great pleasure to be the medium of doing an act of justice to men who had done so much for their country, and had won so much fame for themselves, and who had been by some oversight omitted from the roll of honor furnished the Common Council on the return of the veterans from Mexico in June, 1848. Much feeling was manifested by the six veterans, and they returned thanks to General Pinckney for his exertions in their behalf.

Telegraphic Marine Correspondence.

NEWPORT, RI, Oct 20, 1874.

The schr Davison, Capt Selleck, from New York for New Bedford, with a cargo of scrap iron for the Gosnold mill, at one o'clock this afternoon foundered from some unknown cause, one mile east of Watch Hill, four miles off land. After remaining in the water about thirty minutes, the perilous condition of the crew was seen by the fishing smack James Fitch, Capt Smith, when the latter bore away for them and picked them up just before they were about to give up all hope of being saved. They were brought to this city this afternoon, and some kind friends provided them with suitable clothing, they having lost everything. The vessel was valued at $4,000, upon which there is no insurance. The cargo is insured. Captain Selleck owned one-fourth of the vessel, which hails from Northport, LI. Capt Selleck and crew desire to express to Capt Smith and crew their heartfelt thanks for their kindness. A subscription will probably be raised for them at this port.

SHIP POCAHONTAS—A letter received from Capt J K Crosby gives the particulars of the loss of the above named ship, before briefly mentioned. Capt C says:—When we first left England I observed a very hot steam coming out of all the hatches, but thought nothing of it, as I thought it might be the steaming of the ship. We kept all the hatches off in pleasant weather, so there would be plenty of ventilation, and everything went on all right until the 30th of Aug, when we discovered smoke coming out of the fore hatch, with a strong smell of burning coal. We at once set all hands to work digging the coal up, and shortly came to burning coal, which we threw overboard. After working all day we succeeded, as we thought, in stopping the smoke, and thought everything all right. Nothing of importance occurred until the 8th of Sept, when we again discovered smoke, but this time in the after hatch. We set to work again, but the heat and smoke became so suffocating that the men were unable to work, and we could not find out in which part of the ship the fire was. We closed all hatches and kept off for the coast of Brazil, thinking that we would run the ship as long as possible and leave in boats. On the evening of the 9th we saw a bark, and made a signal of distress, and succeeded in speaking her. The captain kindly consented to lay by us, smoke and heat gaining rapidly all the time. The morning of the 10th it became so bad that I thought it best for the safety of the crew to abandon her, and shortly after she broke out in flames and burned fiercely until midnight, and sunk. My opinion now is that the coal must have been on fire much longer than we had any idea of. Capt Burns, of the Br bark Dunloe, rendered every assistance, and treated us very kindly while on board of his ship. She was bound to Calcutta. Much praise is due to him for his gentlemanly conduct and generous offer to run out of his way to land us at Rio Janeiro, where we arrived on the 15th.

BARK TEGNER (Nor), from Dobov for Savannah (where she was to be docked for repairs), in tow, went ashore in a gale night of Oct 13, on South Breaker, Buttermilk Shoal, six miles from Dobov, and is a total loss. The captain and crew have arrived at Savannah. The T registered 463 tons, and hailed from Christiana.

BARK NEDERLAND (Dutch), ashore at Tybee, had bilged on the 17th, and all hope of getting her off has been abandoned. The water flows in and out of her with the ebb and flow of the tide.

BARK AURORA (Br), which was removed from the dry dock at Savannah Oct 14, had not completed her repairs, as reported. She was taken out to change the chocks, and was put back on the 16th.

BARK VOLAGE (Br), from Iquique for New York, which put into Valparaiso in distress and transhipped her cargo was sold at Valparaiso for $13,000 cash.

SCHR JOHN RANDOLPH, of Fairhaven, was run into by a steamer in New York, 14th inst, and cut to the water's edge. The steamer took her in tow and grounded her. Would partially repair and proceed to New London.

SCHR GRACE DARLING, of Camden, Me, has been purchased by T A Codd, for parties at Cape Verds. She will be employed in the general freighting business from Cape Verds to the Coast of Africa.

SCHR ELLA, Humphreys, from Nassau for New York, put into Charleston 20th inst, with sails split.

SCHR CHARLES H KELLOGG, from Belfast, Me, for Charleston, put into Savannah Oct 19, with loss of anchors and windlass.

SCHR T G TRAFTON, of Portsmouth, at Vineyard Haven 19th inst, from Newburyport for Philadelphia, was in collision with an unknown schooner previous night, off Chatham, and lost cutwater and billet head, and had jib stays and bob stay carried away. The other schooner was at anchor, with no light set. The damage to the latter is unknown.

SCHR E C BIDDLE (another report says steamer G H Stout), from Alexandria for Philadelphia, went ashore on Port Tobacco Shoals, Potomac, on Saturday evening. She remained hard aground at 4 PM next day.

A DISMASTED SCHOONER was at anchor 19th inst off Wood End, about 1 mile south of Boston light.

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ, Oct 19—There is a 3-masted schr ashore on Brigantine Shoals.

QUEBEC, Oct 20—The hull of the Norwegian bark Langar, as she now lies wrecked at Anticosti, with masts, spars, rigging, &c., was sold by auction to Julian Bros, of Quebec, to-day.

SANDWICH, Mass, Oct 19—A boat, about 18 feet long, branded U S L H, with double-reefed sails, came ashore to-day on Sandwich beach, supposed to belong to the Lighthouse Department.

WASHINGTON, Oct 20—During the week ending Oct 17 official numbers and signal letters were awarded by the Bureau of Statistics to 33 merchant vessels, with an aggregate tonnage of 10,147. Five of these vessels averaged over 1,000 tons, the largest being 1,435 tons.

QUICK PASSAGE—Schr Bill Baxter (Br), Baxter, arrived at Halifax 20th inst from New York, in the short time of 52 hours.

Capt Vesey, of bark Eliza Barss (Br), from Bermuda, reports the following:—"A bottle was washed ashore at Boaz Island, Bermuda, lon 64 50, lat 32 20, Oct 8, containing a paper with the following memorandum:—'Schr Admiral Jones, Capt Logan, Sept 6, lat 29, lon 69, in a boat with very little water. Convey this to my poor wife.' The distance the bottle floated is 216 miles in 32 days, NE by E, about 8 miles per day, showing set of current to be NE, and not, as generally supposed, SW in the vicinity of the Bermudas. [We know no such vessel, and it is doubtless a hoax, and is only published in connection as indicating the ocean drift.]

SHIPBUILDING—At Seaford, Del, Mr Wm F Lamb has laid the keel of a large 3-masted schr. Her measurement will be as follows:—Keel, 140 feet; beam, 34 feet; 10½ lower hold and 5½ feet between decks. She will be copper-fastened, and built under the inspection of Philadelphia underwriters so as to rate A No. 1. Her carrying capacity will be about 900 tons.

Notice to Mariners.

The Lighthouse Board give notice that a pile platform is being constructed to aid in the building of a lighthouse in Ship John shoal. It will be some 3½ miles S by W from Cohansey lighthouse, and in about eight feet water. When the weather is such as to permit, it will be lighted at night; but in foggy or thick weather it will [illegible] vessels should keep in the main ship channel.

Whalemen.

Arrived at New Bedford Oct 18, bark A R Tucker, Rickerson, Atlantic Ocean, with 220 bbls sp oil. Spoke about Sept 1 ship Cornelius Howland, Homan, NB, having just taken 2 large whales and saved 120 bbls oil.

A letter from Capt Jacob A Howland dated Valparaiso, June 18, states that the Chilian whales, so far as heard from, have but a meagre catch of both sperm and whale oil.

Spoken.

Ship Roslin Castle (Br), Alexander, from Auckland, NZ, for Portland, O, Sept 4, lon, &c.

NOTICE TO MERCHANTS AND SHIP CAPTAINS.

TAKE A DOSE OF SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS if you have been drinking.

ON ACCOUNT OF THE LARGE NUMBER WHO were unable to gain admittance to the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, last evening, THE GRAND MAGICAL SEANCE, for the benefit of the MEMORIAL HOME FOR CONSUMPTIVES, will be repeated this evening, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1874, at a quarter to eight o'clock. MUSIC BY CONTERNO'S FULL TWENTY-THIRD REGIMENT BAND. TICKETS, $1. CHILDREN HALF PRICE. Tickets issued for Tuesday good for this evening.

TAKE A DOSE OF SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS if your appetite is poor.

ONLY ONCE IN A LIFETIME. A chance to become rich by buying one lot. Don't fail to attend HITCHCOCK'S Great Auction of the famous Leggett Property, in the very business centre of Flushing. To be sold in lots to the highest bidders. And also the commodious Mansion, containing sixteen rooms. On WEDNESDAY, October 21, at noon. By virtue of a contract with the executors of the estate of the late Thomas H. Leggett, deceased, the most valuable property in Flushing, situate on Main, Amity, Union and (new) Locust streets, surrounded by stores and in the centre of traffic and travel, will be offered on terms within the reach of all. In all our business experience we never have been able to offer, heretofore, such valuable property upon such marvellously easy terms of payment. Only 10 per cent on day of sale. Only 20 per cent on October 28, inst. And 5 and 10 years' time for balance. It is but fair to estimate that these lots will double in value in five years, and more than likely be worth $20,000 each in ten years. In comparison, it would be like buying property on Broadway, New York, at the prices of twenty years ago, and getting the increased value of it to-day. There will be no free lunch, and no extraneous inducements to visitors. Only those are invited who desire to secure really valuable property for business and for residence, and those who are seeking the best modes of investment. Flushing now has excellent sewage, gas, water in pipes and all the conveniences of New York city; 120 trains daily; seven depots; fare 10 cents on Long Island Railroad at right hand side of ferry at Hunter's Point. Visitors can take James slip ferryboat at 10 or 11 A. M., or cross Thirty-fourth street at 10:15 or 11:15 and take train at 10:30 or 11:30 and return at pleasure. Maps and free passes can be had on application to EDWARD CARLL, Auctioneer, in Flushing, and at BENJAMIN W. HITCHCOCK'S Real Estate Headquarters, 355 Third avenue, corner Twenty-sixth street, New York.

TAKE A DOSE OF SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS if you have a pain under your shoulder blade.
